COMEDY,

IN FIVE ACTS.

To the Right Honourable

RALPH

Earl of MOUNTAGUE, &c.

My LORD,

WHether the World will arraign me of Vanity, or not, that I have presum'd to Dedicate this Comedy to your Lordship, I am yet in doubt: Tho' it may be it is some degree of Vanity even to doubt of it. One who has at any time had the Honour of your Lordship's Conversation, cannot be suppos'd to think very meanly of that which he would prefer to your Perusal: Yet it were to incur the Imputation of too much Sufficiency, to pretend to such a Merit as might abide the Test of your Lordship's Censure.

What-

Whatever Value may be wanting to this Play while yet it is mine, will be ſufficiently made up to it, when it is once become your Lordſhip's; and it is my Security, that I cannot have over-rated it more by my Dedication, than your Lordſhip will dignifie it by your Patronage.

That it ſucceeded on the Stage, was almoſt beyond my Expectation; for but little of it was prepar'd for that general Taſte which ſeems now to be predominant in the Pallats of our Audience.

Thoſe Characters which are meant to be ridiculous in moſt of our Comedies, are of Fools ſo groſs, that in my humble Opinion, they ſhould rather diſturb than divert the well-natur'd and reflecting part of an Audience; they are rather Objects of Charity than Contempt; and inſtead of moving our Mirth, they ought very often to excite our Compaſſion.

This Reflection mov'd me to deſign ſome Characters, which ſhould appear ridiculous not ſo much thro' a natural Folly (which is incorrigible, and therefore not proper for the Stage) as thro' an affected Wit; a Wit, which at the ſame time that it is affected, is alſo falſe. As there is ſome Difficulty in the formation of a Character of this Nature, ſo there is ſome Hazard which attends the progreſs of its Succeſs, upon the Stage: For many come to a Play, ſo over-charg'd with Criticiſm, that they very often let fly their Cenſure, when through their raſhneſs they have miſtaken their Aim. This I had occaſion lately to obſerve: For this Play had been Acted two or three Days, before ſome of theſe haſty Judges cou'd find the leiſure to diſtinguiſh betwixt the Character of a Witwoud and a Truewit.

their

I muſt beg your Lordſhip's Pardon for this Digreſſion from the true Courſe of this Epiſtle; but that it may not ſeem altogether impertinent, I beg, that I may plead the occaſion of it, in part of that Excuſe of which I ſtand in need, for recommending this Comedy to your Protection. It is only by the Countenance of your Lordſhip, and the Few ſo qualified, that ſuch who write with Care and Pains can hope to be diſtinguiſh'd: For the Proſtituted Name of Poet promiſcuouſly levels all that bear it.

Terence, the moſt correct Writer in the World, had a Scipio and a Lelius if not to aſſiſt him, at leaſt to ſupport him in his Reputation: And notwithſtanding his extraordinary Merit, it may be, their Countenance was not more than neceſſary.

The Purity of his Stile, the Delicacy of his Turns, and the Juſtneſs of his Characters, were all of them Beauties, which the greater part of his Audience were incapable of Taſting: Some of the courſeſt Strokes of Plautus, ſo ſeverely cenſured by Horace, were more likely to affect the Multitude; ſuch, who come with expectation to Laugh out the laſt Act of a Play, and are better entertained with two or three unſeaſonable

Jeſts,

Jeſts, than with the artful Solution of the Fable.

As Terence excell'd in his Performances, ſo had he great Advantages to encourage his Undertakings; for he built moſt on the Foundations of Menander: His Plots were generally modell'd, and his Characters ready drawn to his Hand. He, copied Menander; and Menander had no leſs Light in the Formation of his Characters, from the Obſervations of Theophraſtus, of whom he was a Diſciple; and Theophraſtus it is known was not only the Diſciple, but the immediate Succeſſor of Ariſtotle, the firſt and greateſt Judge of Poetry. Theſe were great Models to deſign by; and the further Advantage which Terence poſſeſs'd, towards giving his Plays the due Ornaments of Purity of Stile, and Juſtneſs of Manners, was not leſs conſiderable, from the freedom of Converſation, which was permitted him with Lelius and Scipio, two of the greateſt and moſt polite Men of his Age. And indeed, the Privilege of ſuch a Converſation, is the only certain Means of attaining to the Perfection of Dialogue.

If it has hapned in any part of this Comedy, that I have gain'd a Turn of Stile, or Expreſſion more Correct, or at leaſt more Corrigible than in thoſe which I have formerly written, I muſt, with equal Pride and Gratitude, aſcribe it to the Honour of your Lordſhip's admitting me into your

your Converſation, and that of a Society where every-body elſe was ſo well worthy of you, in your Retirement laſt Summer from the Town: For it was immediately after, that this Comedy was written. If I have fail'd in my Performance, it is only to be regretted, where there were ſo many, not inferiour either to a Scipio or a Lelius, that there ſhould be one wanting equal to the Capacity of a Terence.

If I am not miſtaken, Poetry is almoſt the only Art, which has not yet laid claim to your Lordſhip's Patronage. Architecture, and Painting, to the great Honour of our Country, have flouriſh'd under your Influence and Protection. In the mean time, Poetry, the eldeſt Siſter of all Arts, and Parent of moſt, ſeems to have reſign'd her Birth-right, by having neglected to pay her Duty to your Lordſhip; and by permitting others of a later Extraction, to prepoſſeſs that Place in your Eſteem, to which none can pretend a better Title. Poetry, in its Nature, is ſacred to the Good and Great; the relation between them is reciprocal, and they are ever propitious to it. It is the Privilege of Poetry to addreſs to them, and it is their Prerogative alone to give it Protection.

This receiv'd Maxim, is a general Apology for all Writers who Conſecrate their Labours to great Men: But I could wiſh at this time, that this Addreſs were exempted from the common pretence of all Dedications; and that as I can distinguish your Lordship even among the most Deserving, so this Offering might become remarkable by some particular Instance of Respect, which shou'd assure your Lordship, that I am, with all due Sense of your extream Worthiness and Humanity,

My LORD,

Your Lordship's most obedient and most oblig'd humble Servant,

Will. Congreve.

PRO-

PROLOGUE,

Spoken by Mr. Betterton.

OF those few Fools, who with ill Stars are curs'd,
Sure scribbling Fools, call'd Poets, fare the worst.
For they're a sort of Fools which Fortune makes,
And after she has made 'em Fools, forsakes.
With Nature's Oafs 'tis quite a diff'rent Case,
For Fortune favours all her Idiot-Race:
In her own Nest the Cuckow-Eggs we find,
O'er which she broods to hatch the Changling-Kind.
No Portion for her own she has to spare,
So much she doats on her adopted Care.
Poets are Bubbles, by the Town drawn in,
Suffer'd at first some trifling Stakes to win:
But what unequal Hazards do they run!
Each time they write, they venture all they've won:
The 'Squire that's butter'd still, is sure to be undone.
This Author, heretofore, has found your Favour,
But pleads no Merit from his past Behaviour.
To build on that might prove a vain Presumption,
Should Grants to Poets made, admit Resumption:
And in Parnassus he must lose his Seat,
If that be found a forfeited Estate.
He owns, with Toil, he wrought the following Scenes,
But if they're naught ne're spare him for his Pains:
Damn him the more; have no Commiseration
For Dulness on mature Deliberation.
He swears he'll not resent one hiss'd-off Scene,
Nor, like those peevish Wits, his Play maintain,
Who, to assert their Sense, your Taste arraign.
Some Plot we think he has, and some new Thought;
Some Humour too, no Farce; but that's a Fault.
Satire, he thinks, you ought not to expect,
For so Reform'd a Town, who dares Correct?
To please, this time, has been his sole Pretence,
He'll not instruct least it should give Offence.
Should he by chance a Knave or Fool expose,
That hurts none here, sure here are none of those.
In short, our Play, shall (with your leave to shew it)
Give you one Instance of a Passive Poet.
Who to your Judgments yields all Resignation;
So Save or Damn, after your own Discretion.

THE

THE Way of the World. A COMEDY.

ACT I. SCENE I.

A Chocolate-house.

Mirabell and Fainall [Rising from Cards] Betty waiting.

Mira. YOU are a fortunate Man, Mr. Fainall.

Fain. Have we done?

Mira. What you please. I'll play on to entertain you.

Fain. No, I'll give you your Revenge another time, when you are not so indifferent; you are thinking of something else now, and play too negligently; the Coldness of a losing Gamester lessens the Pleasure of the Winner: I'd no more play with a Man that slighted his ill Fortune, than I'd make Love to a Woman who undervalu'd the Loss of her Reputation.

Mira. You have a Taſte extreamly delicate, and are for refining on your Pleaſures.

Fain. Prithee, why ſo reſerv'd? Something has put you out of Humour.

Mira. Not at all: I happen to be grave to day; and you are gay; that's all.

Fain. Confeſs, Millamant and you quarrell'd laſt Night, after I left you; my fair Couſin has ſome Humours, that wou'd tempt the patience of a Stoick. What, ſome Coxcomb came in, and was well receiv'd by her, while you were by.

Mira. Witwoud and Petulant; and what was worſe, her Aunt, your Wife's Mother, my evil Genius; or to ſum up all in her own Name, my old Lady Wiſhfort came in.——

Fain. O there it is then——She has a laſting Paſſion for you, and with Reaſon.——What, then my Wife was there?

Mira. Yes, and Mrs. Marwood and three or four more, whom I never ſaw before; ſeeing me, they all put on their grave Faces, whiſper'd one another; then complain'd aloud of the Vapours, and after fell into a profound Silence.

Fain. They had a mind to be rid of you.

Mira. For which Reaſon I reſolv'd not to ſtir. At laſt the good old Lady broke thro' her painful Taciturnity, with an Invective againſt long Viſits. I would not have underſtood her, but Millamant joining in the Argument, I roſe and with a conſtrain'd Smile told her, I thought nothing was ſo eaſie as to know when a Viſit began to be troubleſome; ſhe redned and I withdrew, without expecting her Reply.

Fain. You were to blame to reſent what ſhe ſpoke only in Compliance with her Aunt.

Mira. She is more Miſtreſs of her ſelf, than to be under the neceſſity of ſuch a reſignation.

Fain. What? tho' half her Fortune depends upon her marrying with my Lady's Approbation?

Mira. I was then in ſuch a Humour, that I ſhou'd have been better pleas'd if ſhe had been leſs diſcreet.

Fain.

Fain. Now I remember, I wonder not they were weary of you; laſt Night was one of their Cabal-nights; they have 'em three times a Week, and meet by turns, at one another's Apartments, where they come together like the Coroner's Inqueſt, to ſit upon the murder'd Reputations of the Week. You and I are excluded; and it was once propos'd that all the Male Sex ſhou'd be excepted; but ſomebody mov'd that to avoid Scandal there might be one Man of the Community; upon which Motion Witwoud and Petulant were enroll'd Members.

Mira. And who may have been the Foundreſs of this Sect? My Lady Wiſhfort, I warrant, who publiſhes her Deteſtation of Mankind; and full of the Vigour of Fifty five, declares for a Friend and Ratafia; and let Poſterity ſhift for it ſelf, ſhe'll breed no more.

Fain. The diſcovery of your ſham Addreſſes to her, to conceal your Love to her Niece, has provok'd this Separation: Had you diſſembl'd better, Things might have continu'd in the ſtate of Nature.

Mira. I did as much as Man cou'd, with any reaſonable Conſcience; I proceeded to the very laſt Act of Flattery with her, and was guilty of a Song in her Commendation: Nay, I got a Friend to put her into a Lampoon, and complement her with the Imputation of an Affair with a young Fellow, which I carry'd ſo far, that I told her the malicious Town took notice that ſhe was grown fat of a ſuddain; and when ſhe lay in of a Dropſie, perſuaded her ſhe was reported to be in Labour. The Devil's in't, if an old Woman is to be flatter'd further, unleſs a Man ſhou'd endeavour downright perſonally to debauch her; and that my Virtue forbad me. But for the diſcovery of that Amour, I am Indebted to your Friend, or your Wife's Friend Mrs. Marwood.

Fain. What ſhould provoke her to be your Enemy, without ſhe has made you Advances, which you have ſlighted? Women do not eaſily forgive Omiſſions of that Nature.

Mira. She was always civil to me, till of late; I confeſs I am not one of thoſe Coxcombs who are apt to interpret a Woman's good Manners to her Prejudice; and think that ſhe who does not refuſe 'em every thing, can refuſe 'em nothing.

Fain. You are a gallant Man, Mirabell; and tho' you may have Cruelty enough, not to ſatisfie a Lady's longing; you have too much Generoſity, not to be tender of her Honour. Yet you ſpeak with an Indifference which ſeems to be affected; and confeſſes you are conſcious of a Negligence.

Mira. You purſue the Argument with a diſtruſt that ſeems to be unaffected, and confeſſes you are conſcious of a Concern for which the Lady is more indebted to you, than your Wife.

Fain. Fie, fie Friend, if you grow Cenſorious I muſt leave you;——I'll look upon the Gameſters in the next Room.

Mira. Who are they?

Fain. Petulant and Witwoud.——Bring me ſome Chocolate. [Exit.

Mira. Betty, what ſays your Clock?

Betty. Turn'd of the laſt Canonical Hour, Sir. [Exit.

Mira. How pertinently the Jade anſwers me! Ha? almoſt One a Clock! [Looking on his Watch] O, y'are come——

Enter a Servant.

Well; is the grand Affair over? You have been ſomething tedious.

Serv. Sir, there's ſuch Coupling at Pancras, that they ſtand behind one another, as 'twere in a Country Dance. Ours was the laſt Couple to lead up; and no hopes appearing of diſpatch, Beſides, the Parſon growing hoarſe, we were afraid his Lungs would have fail'd before it came to our turn; ſo we drove round to Duke's Place; and there they were riveted in a trice.

Mira. So, ſo, you are ſure they are Married.

Serv. Married and Bedded, Sir: I am Witneſs.

Mira.

Mira. Have you the Certificate?

Serv. Here it is, Sir.

Mira. Has the Taylor brought Waitwell's Cloaths home, and the new Liveries?

Serv. Yes, Sir.

Mira. That's well. Do you go home again, d'ee hear, and adjourn the Conſummation till farther Order; bid Waitwell ſhake his Ears, and Dame Partlet ruſtle up her Feathers, and meet me at One a Clock by Roſamond's Pond. That I may ſee her before ſhe returns to her Lady; and as you tender your Ears be ſecret. [Exit Servant.

Re-Enter Fainall.

Fain. Joy of your Succeſs, Mirabell; you look pleas'd.

Mira. Ay; I have been engag'd in a Matter of ſome ſort of Mirth, which is not yet ripe for diſcovery. I am glad this is not a Cabal-night. I wonder, Fainall, that you who are Married, and of Conſequence ſhould be diſcreet, will ſuffer your Wife to be of ſuch a Party.

Fain. Faith, I am not Jealous. Beſides, moſt who are engag'd are Women and Relations; and for the Men, they are of a Kind too Contemptible to give Scandal.

Mira. I am of another Opinion. The greater the Coxcomb, always the more the Scandal: For a Woman who is not a Fool, can have but one Reaſon for aſſociating with a Man that is.

Fain. Are you Jealous as often as you ſee Witwoud entertain'd by Millamant?

Mira. Of her Underſtanding I am, if not of her Perſon.

Fain. You do her wrong; for to give her her Due, ſhe has Wit.

Mira. She has Beauty enough to make any Man think ſo; and Complaiſance enough not to contradict him who ſhall tell her ſo.

Fain. For a paſſionate Lover, methinks you are a Man ſomewhat too diſcerning in the Failings of your Miſtreſs.

Mira.

Mira. And for a discerning Man, somewhat too passionate a Lover; for I like her with all her Faults; nay, like her for her Faults. Her Follies are so natural, or so artful, that they become her; and those Affectations which in another Woman wou'd be odious, serve but to make her more agreeable. I'll tell thee, Fainall, she once us'd me with that Insolence, that in Revenge I took her to pieces; sifted her and separated her Failings; I study'd 'em, and got 'em by rote. The Catalogue was so large, that I was not without hopes, one Day or other to hate her heartily: To which end I so us'd my self to think of 'em, that at length, contrary to my Design and Expectation, they gave me every Hour less and less disturbance; 'till in a few Days it became habitual to me, to remember 'em without being displeas'd. They are now grown as familiar to me as my own Frailties; and in all probability in a little time longer I shall like 'em as well.

Fain. Marry her, marry her; be half as well acquainted with her Charms, as you are with her Defects, and my Life on't, you are your own Man again.

Mira. Say you so?

Fain. I, I, I have Experience: I have a Wife, and so forth.

Enter Messenger.

Mess. Is one Squire Witwoud here?

Betty. Yes; what's your Business?

Mess. I have a Letter for him, from his Brother Sir Wilfull, which I am charg'd to deliver into his own Hands.

Betty. He's in the next Room, Friend——That way. [Exit. Mess.

Mira. What, is the Chief of that noble Family in Town, Sir Wilfull Witwoud?

Fain. He is expected to Day. Do you know him?

Mira. I have seen him, he promises to be an extraordinary Person; I think you have the Honour to be related to him.

Fain.

Fain. Yes; he is half Brother to this Witwoud by a former Wife, who was Sister to my Lady Wishfort, my Wife's Mother. If you marry Millamant you must call Cousins too.

Mira. I had rather be his Relation than his Acquaintance.

Fain. He comes to Town in order to Equip himself for Travel.

Mira. For Travel! Why the Man that I mean is above Forty.

Fain. No matter for that; 'tis for the Honour of England, that all Europe should know we have Blockheads of all Ages.

Mira. I wonder there is not an Act of Parliament to save the Credit of the Nation, and prohibit the Exportation of Fools.

Fain. By no means, 'tis better as 'tis; 'tis better to Trade with a little Loss, than to be quite eaten up, with being overstock'd.

Mira. Pray, are the Follies of this Knight-Errant, and those of the Squire his Brother, any thing related?

Fain. Not at all; Witwoud grows by the Knight, like a Medlar grafted on a Crab. One will melt in your Mouth, and t'other set your Teeth on edge; one is all Pulp, and the other all Core.

Mira. So one will be rotten before he be ripe, and the other will be rotten without ever being ripe at all.

Fain. Sir Wilfull is an odd mixture of Bashfulness and Obstinacy.——But when he's drunk, he's as loving as the Monster in the Tempest; and much after the same manner. To give the t'other his due; he has something of good Nature, and does not always want Wit.

Mira. Not always; but as often as his Memory fails him, and his common place of Comparisons. He is a Fool with a good Memory, and some few Scraps of other Folks Wit. He is one whose Conversation can never be approv'd, yet it is now and then to be endur'd. He has indeed one good Quality, he is not Exceptious; for he so passionately affects the the Reputation of underſtanding Raillery; that he will conſtrue an Affront into a Jeſt; and call downright Rudeneſs and ill Language, Satyr and Fire.

Fain. If you have a mind to finiſh his Picture; you have an opportunity to do it at full length. Behold the Original.

Enter Witwoud.

Wit. Afford me your Compaſſion, my Dears; pity me, Fainall, Mirabell, pity me.

Mira. I do from my Soul.

Fain. Why, what's the Matter?

Wit. No Letters for me, Betty?

Betty. Did not the Meſſenger bring you one, but now Sir?

Wit. Ay, but no other?

Betty. No, Sir.

Wit. That's hard, that's very hard;—— A Meſſenger, a Mule, a Beaſt of Burden, he has brought me a Letter from the Fool my Brother, as heavy as a Panegyrick in a Funeral Sermon, or a Copy of Commendatory Verſes from one Poet to another. And what's worſe, 'tis as ſure a forerunner of the Author, as an Epiſtle Dedicatory.

Mira. A Fool, and your Brother Witwoud!

Wit. Ay, ay, my half Brother. My half Brother he is, no nearer upon Honour.

Mira. Then 'tis poſſible he may be but half a Fool.

Wit. Good, good Mirabell, le Drole! Good, good, hang him, don't let's talk of him;——Fainall, how does your Lady? Gad, I ſay any thing in the World to get this Fellow out of my Head. I beg Pardon that I ſhou'd ask a Man of Pleaſure, and the Town, a Queſtion at once ſo Foreign and Domeſtick. But I Talk like an old Maid at a Marriage, I don't know what I ſay: But ſhe's the beſt Woman in the World.

Fain. 'Tis well you don't know what you ſay, or elſe your Commendation wou'd go near to make me either Vain or Jealous.

Wit.

Wit. No Man in Town lives well with a Wife but Fainall: Your Judgment Mirabell.

Mira. You had better ſtep and ask his Wife; if you wou'd be credibly inform'd.

Wit. Mirabell.

Mira. Ay.

Wit. My Dear, I ask ten thouſand Pardons;——Gad I have forgot what I was going to ſay to you.

Mira. I thank you heartily, heartily.

Wit. No, but prithee excuſe me,——my Memory is ſuch a Memory.

Mira. Have a care of ſuch Apologies, Witwoud;—— for I never knew a Fool but he affected to complain, either of the Spleen or his Memory.

Fain. What have you done with Petulant?

Wit. He's reckoning his Mony,——my Mony it was;—— I have no Luck to Day.

Fain. You may allow him to win of you at Play;—— for you are ſure to be too hard for him at Repartee: ſince you monopolize the Wit that is between you, the Fortune muſt be his of Courſe.

Mira. I don't find that Petulant confeſſes the Superiority of Wit to be your Talent, Witwoud.

Wit. Come, come, you are malicious now, and wou'd breed Debates.——Petulant's my Friend, and a very honeſt Fellow, and a very pretty Fellow, and has a ſmattering—— Faith and Troth a pretty deal of an odd ſort of a ſmall Wit: Nay, I'll do him Juſtice. I'm his Friend, I won't wrong him neither———And if he had but any Judgment in the World,——he wou'd not be altogether contemptible. Come come, don't detract from the Merits of my Friend.

Fain. You don't take your Friend to be overnicely bred.

Wit. No, no, hang him, the Rogue has no Manners at all, that I muſt own——No more breeding than a Bum-baily, that I grant you,——'Tis Pity faith; the Fellow has Fire and Life.

Mira. What, Courage?

Wit. Hum, faith I don't know as to that,——I can't ſay as to that.——Yes, Faith, in a Controverſie he'll contradict any Body.

Mira. Tho' 'twere a Man whom he fear'd, or a Woman whom he lov'd.

Wit. Well, well, he does not always think before he ſpeaks;——We have all our Failings; you're too hard upon him, you are Faith. Let me excuſe him;——I can defend moſt of his Faults, except one or two; one he has, that's the Truth on't, if he were my Brother, I cou'd not acquit him———That indeed I cou'd wiſh were otherwiſe.

Mira. Ay marry, what's that, Witwoud?

Wit. O pardon me——Expoſe the Infirmities of my Friend.——No, my Dear, excuſe me there.

Fain. What I warrant he's unſincere, or 'tis ſome ſuch Trifle.

Wit. No, no, what if he be? 'Tis no matter for that, his Wit will excuſe that: A Wit ſhou'd no more be ſincere, than a Woman conſtant; one argues a decay of Parts, as t'other of Beauty.

Mira. May be you think him too poſitive?

Wit. No, no, his being poſitive is an Incentive to Argument, and keeps up Converſation.

Fain. Too Illiterate.

Wit. That! that's his Happineſs——His want of Learning, gives him the more opportunities to ſhew his natural Parts.

Mira. He wants Words.

Wit. Ay; but I like him for that now; for his want of Words gives me the pleaſure very often to explain his meaning.

Fain. He's Impudent.

Wit. No; that's not it.

Mira. Vain.

Wit. No.

Mira. What, he ſpeaks unſeaſonable Truths ſometimes, becauſe he has not Wit enough to invent an Evaſion.

Wit.

Wit. Truths! Ha, ha, ha! No, no, since you will have it, —— I mean he never speaks Truth at all,——that's all. He will lie like a Chambermaid, or a Woman of Quality's Porter. Now that is a Fault.

Enter Coachman.

Coach. Is Master Petulant here, Mistress?

Betty. Yes.

Coach. Three Gentlewomen in the Coach would speak with him.

Fain. O brave Petulant, three!

Betty. I'll tell him.

Coach. You must bring two Dishes of Chocolate and a Glass of Cinnamon-water. [Exit.

Wit. That should be for two fasting Strumpets, and a Bawd troubl'd with Wind. Now you may know what the three are.

Mira. You are very free with your Friends Acquaintance.

Wit. Ay, ay, Friendship without Freedom is as dull as Love without Enjoyment, or Wine without Toasting; but to tell you a Secret, these are Trulls that he allows Coach-hire, and something more by the Week, to call on him once a Day at publick Places.

Mira. How!

Wit. You shall see he won't go to 'em because there's no more Company here to take notice of him——Why this is nothing to what he us'd to do;——Before he found out this way, I have known him call for himself——

Fain. Call for himself? What dost thou mean?

Wit. Mean, why he wou'd slip you out of this Chocolate-house, just when you had been talking to him——As soon as your Back was turn'd——Whip he was gone;—— Then trip to his Lodging, clap on a Hood and Scarf, and Mask, slap into a Hackney-Coach, and drive hither to the Door again in a trice; where he wou'd send in for himself, that I mean, call for himself, wait for himself, nay and what's more, not finding himself, sometimes leave a Letter for himself.

Mira. I confeſs this is ſomething extraordinary——I believe he waits for himſelf now, he is ſo long a coming; O I ask his Pardon.

Enter Petulant.

Betty, Sir, the Coach ſtays.

Pet. Well, well; I come——Sbud, a Man had as good be a profeſs'd Midwife as a profeſt Whoremaſter, at this rate; to be knock'd up and rais'd at all Hours, and in all Places. Pox on 'em I won't come.——Dee hear, tell 'em I won't come.——Let 'em ſnivel and cry their Hearts out.

Fain. You are very cruel, Petulant.

Pet. All's one, let it paſs——I have a Humour to be cruel.

Mira. I hope they are not Perſons of Condition that you uſe at this rate.

Pet. Condition, Condition's a dry'd Fig, if I am not in Humour——By this Hand, if they were your——a——a——your What-dee call-'ems themſelves, they muſt wait or rub off, if I want Appetite.

Mira. What-dee-call-'ems! What are they, Witwoud?

Wit. Empreſſes, my Dear——By your What-dee-call-'ems he means Sultana Queens.

Pet. Ay, Roxolana's.

Mira. Cry you Mercy.

Fain. Witwoud ſays they are——

Pet. What does he ſay th'are?

Wit. I; fine Ladies I ſay.

Pet. Paſs on, Witwoud——Hearkee, by this Light his Relations——Two Coheireſſes his Couſins, and an old Aunt, that loves Catterwauling better than a Conventicle.

Wit. Ha, ha, ha; I had a Mind to ſee how the Rogue wou'd come off——Ha, ha, ha; Gad I can't be angry with him; if he ſaid they were my Mother and my Siſters.

Mira. No!

Wit.

Wit. No; the Rogue's Wit and Readineſs of Invention charm me, dear Petulant.

Betty. They are gone Sir, in great Anger.

Pet. Enough, let 'em trundle. Anger helps Complexion, ſaves Paint.

Fain. This Continence is all diſſembled; this is in order to have ſomething to brag of the next time he makes Court to Millamant, and ſwear he has abandon'd the whole Sex for her Sake.

Mira. Have you not left off your impudent Pretenſions there yet? I ſhall cut your Throat, ſometime or other Petulant, about that Buſineſs.

Pet. Ay, ay, let that paſs——There are other Throats to be cut——

Mira. Meaning mine, Sir?

Pet. Not I——I mean no Body——I know nothing——But there are Uncles and Nephews in the World——And they may be Rivals——What then? All's one for that——

Mira. How! hearkee Petulant, come hither——Explain, or I ſhall call your Interpreter.

Pet. Explain, I know nothing——Why you have an Uncle, have you not, lately come to Town, and lodges by my Lady Wiſhfort's?

Mira. True.

Pet. Why that's enough——You and he are not Friends; and if he ſhou'd marry and have a Child, you may be diſinherited, ha?

Mira. Where haſt thou ſtumbled upon all this Truth?

Pet. All's one for that; why then ſay I know ſomething.

Mira. Come, thou art an honeſt Fellow Petulant, and ſhalt make Love to my Miſtreſs, thou ſha't, Faith. What haſt thou heard of my Uncle?

Pet. I, nothing I. If Throats are to be cut, let Swords claſh; ſnugs the Word, I ſhrug and am ſilent.

Mira. O Raillery, Raillery. Come, I know thou art in the Women's Secrets——What you're a Cabaliſt, I know you ſtaid at Millamant's laſt Night, after I went. Was there

there any mention made of my Uncle, or me? Tell me; if thou hadſt but good Nature equal to thy Wit Petulant, Tony Witwoud, who is now thy Competitor in Fame, wou'd ſhew as dim by thee as a dead Whiting's Eye, by a Pearl of Orient; he wou'd no more be ſeen by thee, then Mercury is by the Sun: Come, I'm ſure thou wo't tell me.

Pet. If I do, will you grant me common Senſe then, for the future?

Mira. Faith I'll do what I can for thee; and I'll pray that Heav'n may grant it thee in the mean time.

Pet. Well, hearkee.

Fain. Petulant and you both will find Mirabell as warm a Rival as a Lover.

Wit. Pſhaw, pſhaw, that ſhe laughs at Petulant is plain. And for my part——But that it is almoſt a Faſhion to admire her, I ſhou'd——Hearkee——To tell you a Secret, but let it go no further——Between Friends, I ſhall never break my Heart for her.

Fain. How!

Wit. She's handſome; but ſhe's a ſort of an uncertain Woman.

Fain. I thought you had dy'd for her.

Wit. Umh——No——

Fain. She has Wit.

Wit. 'Tis what ſhe will hardly allow any Body elſe;——Now, Demme, I ſhon'd hate that, if ſhe were as handſome as Cleopatra. Mirabell is not ſo ſure of her as he thinks for.

Fain. Why do you think ſo?

Wit. We ſtaid pretty late there laſt Night; and heard ſomething of an Uncle to Mirabell, who is lately come to Town,——and is between him and the beſt part of his Eſtate; Mirabell and he are at ſome diſtance, as my Lady Wiſhfort has been told; and you know ſhe hates Mirabell, worſe than a Quaker hates a Parrot: Or then a Fiſhmonger hates a hard Froſt. Whether this Uncle has ſeen Mrs. Millamant or not, I cannot ſay; but there were Items of ſuch a Treaty being in Embrio; and if it ſhou'd come to Life; poor

Mira-

Mirabell wou'd be in ſome ſort unfortunately fobb'd ifaith.

Fain. 'Tis impoſſible Millamant ſhould hearken to it.

Wit. Faith, my Dear, I can't tell; ſhe's a Woman and a kind of a Humoriſt.

Mira. And this is the Sum of what you cou'd collect laſt Night.

Pet. The Quinteſſence. May be Witwoud knows more, he ſtay'd longer——Beſides they never mind him; they ſay any thing before him.

Mira. I thought you had been the greateſt Favourite.

Pet. Ay teſte a teſte; But not in publick, becauſe I make Remarks.

Mira. Do you.

Pet. Ay, ay, pox I'm malicious, Man. Now he's ſoft you know, they are not in awe of him——The Fellow's well bred, he's what you call a——What-dee-call-'em. A fine Gentleman, but he's ſilly withal.

Mira. I thank you, I know as much as my Curioſity requires. Fainall, are you for the Mall?

Fain. Ay, I'll take a turn before Dinner.

Wit. Ay, we'll all walk in the Park, the Ladies talk'd of being there.

Mira. I thought you were oblig'd to watch for your Brother Sir Wilfull's arrival.

Wit. No, no, he comes to his Aunts, my Lady Wiſhfort; pox on him, I ſhall be troubled with him too; what ſhall I do with the Fool?

Pet. Beg him for his Eſtate; that I may beg you afterwards; and ſo have but one Trouble with you both.

Wit. O rare Petulant; thou art as quick as a Fire in a froſty Morning; thou ſhalt to the Mall with us; and we'll be very ſevere.

Pet. Enough, I'm in a Humour to be ſevere.

Mira. Are you? Pray then walk by your ſelves,—— Let not us be acceſſary to your putting the Ladies out of Countenance, with your ſenſeleſs Ribaldry; which you roar out aloud as often as they paſs by you; and when you have have made a handsome Woman blush, then you think you have been severe.

Pet. What, what? Then let 'em either shew their Innocence by not understanding what they hear, or else shew their Discretion by not hearing what they would not be thought to understand.

Mira. But hast not thou then Sense enough to know that thou ought'st to be most asham'd thy Self, when thou hast put another out of Countenance.

Pet. Not I, by this Hand——I always take blushing either for a Sign of Guilt, or ill Breeding.

Mira. I confess you ought to think so. You are in the right, that you may plead the error of your Judgment in defence of your Practice.

Where Modesty's ill Manners, 'tis but fit
That Impudence and Malice, pass for Wit.

[Exeunt.

ACT

ACT II. SCENE I.

St. James's Park.

Enter Mrs. Fainall and Mrs. Marwood.

Mr. Fain. AY, ay, dear Marwood, if we will be happy, we muſt find the means in our ſelves, and among our ſelves. Men are ever in Extreams; either doating or averſe. While they are Lovers, if they have Fire and Senſe, their Jealouſies are inſupportable: And when they ceaſe to Love, (we ought to think at leaſt) they loath; they look upon us with Horror and Diſtaſte; they meet us like the Ghoſts of what we were, and as ſuch fly from us.

Mrs. Mar. True, 'tis an unhappy Circumſtance of Life, that Love ſhou'd ever die before us; and that the Man ſo often ſhou'd out-live the Lover. But ſay what you will, 'tis better to be left, than never to have been lov'd. To paſs our Youth in dull Indifference, to refuſe the Sweets of Life becauſe they once muſt leave us; is as prepoſterous, as to wiſh to have been born Old, becauſe we one Day muſt be Old. For my part, my Youth may wear and waſte, but it ſhall never ruſt in my Poſſeſſion.

Mrs. Fain. Then it ſeems you diſſemble an Averſion to Mankind, only in compliance with my Mothers Humour.

Mrs. Mar. Certainly. To be free; I have no Taſte of thoſe inſipid dry Diſcourſes, with which our Sex of force muſt entertain themſelves, apart from Men. We may affect Endearments to each other, profeſs eternal Friendſhips, and ſeem to doat like Lovers; but 'tis not in our Natures long to perſevere. Love will reſume his Empire in our Breaſts, and every Heart, or ſoon or late, receive and readmit him as its lawful Tyrant.

Mrs. Fain. Bleſs me, how have I been deceiv'd! Why you profeſs a Libertine.

Mrs. Mar. You ſee my Friendſhip by my Freedom. Come, be as ſincere, acknowledge that your Sentiments agree with mine.

Mrs. Fain. Never.

Mrs. Mar. You hate Mankind.

Mrs. Fain. Heartily, Inveterately.

Mrs. Mar. Your Husband.

Mrs. Fain. Moſt tranſcendantly; ay, tho' I ſay it, meritoriouſly.

Mrs. Mar. Give me your Hand upon it.

Mrs. Fain. There.

Mrs. Mar. I join with you; what I have ſaid, has been to try you.

Mrs. Fain. Is it poſſible? Doſt thou hate thoſe Vipers Men?

Mrs. Mar. I have done hating 'em; and am now come to deſpiſe 'em; the next thing I have to do, is eternally to forget 'em.

Mrs. Fain. There ſpoke the Spirit of an Amazon, a Pentheſilea.

Mrs. Mar. And yet I am thinking ſometimes, to carry my Averſion further.

Mrs. Fain. How?

Mrs. Mar. Faith by Marrying; if I cou'd but find one that lov'd me very well, and would be throughly ſenſible of ill uſage; I think I ſhou'd do my ſelf the violence of undergoing the Ceremony.

Mrs. Fain. You would not make him a Cuckold?

Mrs. Mar. No; but I'd make him believe I did, and that's as bad.

Mrs. Fain. Why, had not you as good do it?

Mrs. Mar. O if he ſhou'd ever diſcover it, he wou'd then know the worſt; and be out of his Pain; but I wou'd have him ever to continue upon the Rack of Fear and Jealouſy.

Mrs. Fain. Ingenious Miſchief! Wou'd thou wert married to Mirabell.

Mrs. Mar. Wou'd I were.

Mrs. Fain. You change Colour.

Mrs. Mar. Becauſe I hate him.

Mrs.

Mrs. Fain. So do I; but I can hear him nam'd. But what Reaſon have you to hate him in particular?

Mrs. Mar. I never lov'd him; he is, and always was inſufferably proud.

Mrs. Fain. By the Reaſon you give for your Averſion, one wou'd think it diſſembl'd; for you have laid a Fault to his Charge, of which his Enemies muſt acquit him.

Mrs. Mar. O then it ſeems you are one of his favourable Enemies. Methinks you look a little pale, and now you fluſh again.

Mrs. Fain. Do I? I think I am a little ſick o' the ſuddain.

Mrs. Mar. What ails you?

Mrs. Fain. My Husband. Don't you ſee him? He turn'd ſhort upon me unawares, and has almoſt overcome me.

Enter Fainall and Mirabell.

Mrs. Mar. Ha, ha, ha; he comes opportunely for you.

Mrs. Fain. For you, for he has brought Mirabell with him.

Fain. My Dear.

Mrs. Fain. My Soul.

Fain. You don't look well to Day, Child.

Mrs. Fain. Dee think ſo?

Mira. He is the only Man that do's, Madam.

Mrs. Fain. The only Man that would tell me ſo at leaſt; and the only Man from whom I could hear it without Mortification.

Fain. O my Dear I am ſatisfy'd of your Tenderneſs; I know you cannot reſent any thing from me; eſpecially what is an effect of my Concern.

Mrs. Fain. Mr. Mirabell; my Mother interrupted you in a pleaſant Relation laſt Night: I wou'd fain hear it out.

Mira. The Perſons concern'd in that Affair, have yet a tollerable Reputation——I am afraid Mr. Fainall will be Cenſorious.

Mrs. Fain. He has a Humour more prevailing than his Curioſity, and will willingly diſpence with the hearing of one ſcandalous Story, to avoid giving an occaſion to make another by being seen to walk with his Wife. This way Mr. Mirabell, and I dare promise you will oblige us both.

[Exeunt Mrs. Fainall and Mirabell.

Fain. Excellent Creature! Well sure if I shou'd live to be rid of my Wife, I shou'd be a miserable Man.

Mrs. Mar. Ay!

Fain. For having only that one Hope, the accomplishment of it, of Consequence must put an end to all my hopes; and what a Wretch is he who must survive his hopes! Nothing remains when that Day comes, but to sit down and weep like Alexander, when he wanted other Worlds to conquer.

Mrs. Mar. Will you not follow 'em?

Fain. Faith, I think not.

Mrs. Mar. Pray let us; I have a Reason.

Fain. You are not Jealous?

Mrs. Mar. Of whom?

Fain. Of Mirabell.

Mrs. Mar. If I am, is it inconsistent with my Love to you that I am tender of your Honour?

Fain. You wou'd intimate then, as if there were a fellow-feeling between my Wife and Him.

Mrs. Mar. I think she do's not hate him to that degree she wou'd be thought.

Fain. But he, I fear, is too Insensible.

Mrs. Mar. It may be you are deceiv'd.

Fain. It may be so. I do now begin to apprehend it.

Mrs. Mar. What?

Fain. That I have been deceiv'd Madam, and you are false.

Mrs. Mar. That I am false! What mean you?

Fain. To let you know I see through all your little Arts—Come, you both love him; and both have equally dissembl'd your Aversion. Your mutual Jealousies of one another, have made you clash till you have both struck Fire. I have seen the warm Confession red'ning on your Cheeks, and sparkling from your Eyes.

Mrs. Mar. You do me wrong.

Fain. I do not——'Twas for my ease to oversee and wilfully fully neglect the groſs advances made him by my Wife; that by permitting her to be engag'd, I might continue unſuſpected in my Pleaſures; and take you oftner to my Arms in full Security. But cou'd you think becauſe the nodding Husband would not wake, that e'er the watchful Lover ſlept!

Mrs. Mar. And wherewithal can you reproach me?

Fain. With Infidelity, with loving of another, with love of Mirabell.

Mrs. Mar. 'Tis falſe. I challenge you to ſhew an Inſtance that can confirm your groundleſs Accuſation. I hate him.

Fain. And wherefore do you hate him? He is Inſenſible, and your Reſentment follows his Neglect. An Inſtance? The Injuries you have done him are a proof: Your interpoſing in his Love. What cauſe had you to make Diſcoveries of his pretended Paſſion? To undeceive the credulous Aunt, and be the officious Obſtacle of his Match with Millamant?

Mrs. Mar. My Obligations to my Lady urg'd me: I had profeſs'd a Friendſhip to her; and could not ſee her eaſie Nature ſo abus'd by that Diſſembler.

Fain. What, was it Conſcience then! profeſs'd a Friendſhip! O the pious Friendſhips of the Female Sex!

Mrs. Mar. More tender, more ſincere, and more enduring, than all the vain and empty Vows of Men, whether profeſſing Love to us, or mutual Faith to one another.

Fain. Ha, ha, ha; you are my Wife's Friend too.

Mrs. Mar. Shame and Ingratitude! Do you reproach me? You, you upbraid me! Have I been falſe to her, thro' ſtrict Fidelity to you, and ſacrific'd my Friendſhip to keep my Love inviolate? And have you the baſeneſs to charge me with the Guilt, unmindful of the Merit! To you it ſhou'd be meritorious, that I have been vicious: And do you reflect that Guilt upon me, which ſhould lie buried in your Boſom?

Fain. You miſinterpret my Reproof. I meant but to remind you of the ſlight Account you once could make of ſtricteſt Ties, when ſet in Competion with your Love to me.

Mrs.

Mrs. Mar. 'Tis falſe, you urg'd it with deliberate Malice—'Twas ſpoke in ſcorn, and I never will forgive it.

Fain. Your Guilt, not your Reſentment, begets your Rage. If yet you lov'd, you could forgive a Jealouſy: But you are ſtung to find you are diſcover'd.

Mrs. Mar. It ſhall be all diſcover'd. You too ſhall be diſcover'd; be ſure you ſhall. I can but be expos'd—If I do it my ſelf I ſhall prevent your Baſeneſs.

Fain. Why, what will you do?

Mrs. Mar. Diſcloſe it to your Wife; own what has paſt between us.

Fain. Frenzy!

Mrs. Mar. By all my Wrongs I'll do't—I'll publiſh to the World the Injuries you have done me, both in my Fame and Fortune: With both I truſted you, you Bankrupt in Honour, as indigent of Wealth.

Fain. Your Fame I have preſerv'd. Your Fortune has been beſtow'd as the prodigality of your Love would have it, in Pleaſures which we both have ſhar'd. Yet had not you been falſe, I had e'er this repaid it—'Tis true—Had you permitted Mirabell with Millamant to have ſtoll'n their Marriage, my Lady had been incens'd beyond all means of reconcilement: Millamant had forfeited the Moiety of her Fortune; which then wou'd have deſcended to my Wife;—And wherefore did I marry, but to make lawful Prize of a rich Widow's Wealth, and ſquander it on Love and you?

Mrs. Mar. Deceit and frivolous Pretence.

Fain. Death, am I not married? what's pretence? Am I not Impriſon'd, Fetter'd? Have I not a Wife? Nay a Wife that was a Widow, a young Widow, a handſome Widow; and would be again a Widow, but that I have a Heart of Proof, and ſomething of a Conſtitution to buſtle thro' the ways of Wedlock and this World. Will you yet be reconcil'd to Truth and me?

Mrs. Mar. Impoſſible. Truth and you are inconſiſtent—I hate you, and ſhall for ever.

Fain. For loving you?

Mrs. Mar. I loath the name of Love after ſuch uſage;

and

and next to the Guilt with which you wou'd aſperſe me, I ſcorn you moſt. Farewell.

Fain. Nay, we muſt not part thus.

Mrs. Mar. Let me go.

Fain. Come, I'm ſorry.

Mrs. Mar. I care not——Let me go——Break my Hands, do——I'd leave 'em to get looſe.

Fain. I would not hurt you for the World. Have I no other Hold to keep you here?

Mrs. Mar. Well, I have deſerv'd it all.

Fain. You know I love you.

Mrs. Mar. Poor diſſembling!——O that——Well, it is not yet——

Fain. What? what is it not? What is it not yet? It is not yet too late——

Mrs. Mar. No, it is not yet too late—I have that Comfort.

Fain. It is to love another.

Mrs. Mar. But not to loath, deteſt, abhor Mankind, my ſelf and the whole treacherous World.

Fain. Nay, this is Extravagance——Come I ask your Pardon——No Tears——I was to blame, I cou'd not love you and be eaſie in my Doubts——Pray forbear——I believe you; I'm convinc'd I've done you wrong; and any way, every way will make amends;——I'll hate my Wife yet more, Dam her, I'll part with her, rob her of all ſhe's worth, and will retire ſomewhere, any where to another World, I'll marry thee——Be pacify'd——'Sdeath they come, hide your Face, your Tears——You have a Mask, wear it a Moment. This way, this way, be perſuaded. [Exeunt.

Enter Mirabell and Mrs. Fainall.

Mrs. Fain. They are here yet.

Mira. They are turning into the other Walk.

Mrs. Fain. While I only hated my Husband, I could bear to ſee him; but ſince I have deſpis'd him, he's too offenſive.

Mira.

Mira. O you ſhould Hate with Prudence.

Mrs. Fain. Yes, for I have Lov'd with Indiſcretion.

Mira. You ſhou'd have juſt ſo much diſguſt for your Husband, as may be ſufficient to make you reliſh your Lover.

Mrs. Fain. You have been the cauſe that I have lov'd without Bounds, and wou'd you ſet Limits to that Averſion, of which you have been the occaſion? Why did you make me marry this Man?

Mira. Why do we daily commit diſagreeable and dangerous Actions? To ſave that Idol Reputation. If the familiarities of our Loves had produc'd that Conſequence, of which you were aprehenſive, Where could you have fix'd a Father's Name with Credit, but on a Husband? I knew Fainall to be a Man laviſh of his Morals, an intereſted and profeſſing Friend, a falſe and a deſigning Lover; yet one whoſe Wit and outward fair Behaviour, have gain'd a Reputation with the Town, enough to make that Woman ſtand excus'd, who has ſuffer'd herſelf to be won by his Addreſſes. A better Man ought not to have been ſacrific'd to the Occaſion; a worſe had not anſwer'd to the Purpoſe. When you are weary of him, you know your Remedy.

Mrs. Fain. I ought to ſtand in ſome degree of Credit with you, Mirabell.

Mira. In Juſtice to you, I have made you privy to my whole Deſign, and put it in your Power to ruin or advance my Fortune.

Mrs. Fain. Whom have you inſtructed to repreſent your pretended Uncle?

Mira. Waitwell, my Servant.

Mrs. Fain. He is an humble Servant to Foible my Mothers Woman; and may win her to your Intereſt.

Mira. Care is taken for that——She is won and worn by this time. They were married this morning.

Mrs. Fain. Who?

Mira. Waitwell and Foible. I wou'd not tempt my Servant to betray me by truſting him too far. If your Mother, in hopes to ruin me, ſhou'd conſent to marry my pretended Uncle, Uncle, he might like Mosca in the Fox, ſtand upon Terms; ſo I made him ſure before-hand.

Mrs. Fain. So, if my poor Mother is caught in a Contract, you will diſcover the Impoſture betimes; and releaſe her by producing a Certificate of her Gallants former Marriage.

Mira. Yes, upon Condition ſhe conſent to my Marriage with her Niece, and ſurrender the Moiety of her Fortune in her Poſſeſſion.

Mrs. Fain. She talk'd laſt Night of endeavouring at a Match between Millamant and your Uncle.

Mira. That was by Foible's Direction, and my Inſtruction, that ſhe might ſeem to carry it more privately.

Mrs. Fain. Well, I have an Opinion of your Succeſs; for I believe my Lady will do any thing to get a Husband; and when ſhe has this, which you have provided for her, I ſuppoſe ſhe will ſubmit to any thing to get rid of him.

Mira. Yes, I think the good Lady wou'd marry any Thing that reſembl'd a Man, tho' 'twere no more than what a Butler cou'd pinch out of a Napkin.

Mrs. Fain. Female Frailty! We muſt all come to it, if we live to be Old and feel the craving of a falſe Appetite when the true is decay'd.

Mira. An old Woman's Appetite is deprav'd like that of a Girl——'Tis the Green Sickneſs of a ſecond Childhood; and like the faint Offer of a latter Spring, ſerves but to uſher in the Fall; and withers in an affected Bloom.

Mrs. Fain. Here's your Miſtreſs.

Enter Mrs. Millamant, Witwoud, and Mincing.

Mira. Here ſhe comes I faith full ſail, with her Fan ſpread and her Streamers out, and a ſhoal of Fools for Tenders——Ha, no, I cry her Mercy.

Mrs. Fain. I ſee but one poor empty Sculler; and he tows her Woman after him.

Mira. You ſeem to be unattended, Madam——You us'd to have the Beau-mond Throng after you; and a Flock of gay fine Perrukes hovering round you.

Wit. Like Moths about a Candle——I had like to have loſt my Compariſon for want of Breath.

Milla. O I have deny'd my ſelf Airs to Day. I have walk'd as faſt through the Crowd——

Wit. As a Favourite in diſgrace; and with as few Followers.

Milla. Dear Mr. Witwoud, truce with your Similitudes: For I am as ſick of 'em——

Wit. As a Phiſician of a good Air——I cannot help it Madam, tho' 'tis againſt my ſelf.

Milla. Yet again! Mincing, ſtand between me and his Wit.

Wit. Do Mrs. Mincing, like a Skreen before a great Fire. I confeſs I do blaze to Day, I am too bright.

Mrs. Fain. But dear Millamant, why were you ſo long?

Milla. Long! Lord, have I not made violent haſte? I have ask'd every living Thing I met for you; I have enquir'd after you, as after a new Faſhion.

Wit. Madam, truce with your Similitudes——No, you met her Husband and did not ask him for her.

Mira. By your leave Witwoud, that were like enquiring after an old Faſhion, to ask a Husband for his Wife.

Wit. Hum, a hit, a hit, a palpable hit, I confeſs it.

Mrs. Fain. You were dreſs'd before I came abroad.

Milla. Ay, that's true——O but then I had——Mincing what had I? Why was I ſo long?

Minc. O Mem, your Laſhip ſtaid to peruſe a Pecquet of Letters.

Milla. O ay, Letters——I had Letters——I am perſecuted with Letters——I hate Letters——No Body knows how to write Letters; and yet one has 'em, one does not know why——They ſerve one to pin up one's Hair.

Wit. Is that the way? Pray Madam, do you pin up your Hair with all your Letters? I find I muſt keep Copies.

Milla. Only with thoſe in Verſe, Mr. Witwoud. I never pin up my Hair with Proſe. I fancy ones Hair wou'd not curl if it were pinn'd up with Proſe. I think I try'd once Mincing.

Minc. O Mem, I ſhall never forget it.

Milla.

Milla. Ay, poor Mincing tift and tift all the morning.

Minc. 'Till I had the Cremp in my Fingers I'll vow Mem. And all to no purpoſe. But when your Laſhip pins it up with Poetry, it ſits ſo pleaſant the next Day as any Thing, and is ſo pure and ſo crips.

Wit. Indeed, ſo crips?

Minc. You're ſuch a Critick, Mr. Wtiwoud.

Milla. Mirabell, Did not you take Exceptions laſt Night? O ay, and went away——Now I think on't I'm angry——No, now I think on't I'm pleas'd——For I believe I gave you ſome Pain.

Mira. Do's that pleaſe you?

Milla. Infinitely; I love to give Pain.

Mira. You wou'd affect a Cruelty which is not in your Nature; your true Vanity is in the power of pleaſing.

Milla. O I ask your Pardon for that——One's Cruelty is one's Power, and when one parts with one's Cruelty, one parts with one's Power; and when one has parted with that, I fancy one's Old and Ugly.

Mira. Ay, ay, ſuffer your Cruelty to ruin the object of your Power, to deſtroy your Lover——And then how vain how loſt a Thing you'll be! Nay, 'tis true: You are no longer handſome when you've loſt your Lover; your Beauty dies upon the Inſtant: For Beauty is the Lovers Gift; 'tis he beſtows your Charms——Your Glaſs is all a Cheat. The Ugly and the Old, whom the Looking-glaſs mortifies, yet after Commendation can be flatter'd by it, and diſcover Beauties in it: For that reflects our Praiſes, rather than your Face.

Milla. O the Vanity of theſe Men! Fainall, dee hear him? If they did not commend us, we were not handſome! Now you muſt know they could not commend one, if one was not handſome. Beauty the Lover's Gift——Lord, what is a Lover, that it can give? Why one makes Lovers as faſt as one pleaſes, and they live as long as one pleaſes, and they die as ſoon as one pleaſes: And then if one pleaſes, one makes more.

Wit. Very pretty. Why you make no more of making of Lovers, Madam, than of making ſo many Card-matches.

Milla. One no more owes one's Beauty to a Lover, than ones Wit to an Eccho: They can but reflect what we look and ſay; vain empty Things if we are ſilent or unſeen, and want a being.

Mira. Yet to thoſe two vain empty Things, you owe two the greateſt Pleaſures of your Life.

Milla. How ſo?

Mira. To your Lover you owe the pleaſure of hearing your ſelves prais'd; and to an Eccho the pleaſure of hearing your ſelves talk.

Wit. But I know a Lady that loves talking ſo inceſſantly, ſhe won't give an Eccho fair play; ſhe has that everlaſting Rotation of Tongue, that an Eccho muſt wait till ſhe dies, before it can catch her laſt Words.

Milla. O Fiction; Fainall, let us leave theſe Men.

Mira. Draw off Witwoud. [Aſide to Mrs. Fainall.

Mrs. Fain. Immediately; I have a Word or two for Mr. Witwoud.

Mira. I wou'd beg a little private Audience too——— [Exit Witwoud and Mrs. Fainall. You had the Tyranny to deny me laſt Night; tho' you knew I came to impart a Secret to you, that concern'd my Love.

Milla. You ſaw I was engag'd.

Mira. Unkind. You had the leiſure to entertain a Herd of Fools; Things who viſit you from their exceſſive Idleneſs; beſtowing on your eaſineſs that time, which is the incumbrance of their Lives. How can you find delight in ſuch Society? It is impoſſible they ſhould admire you, they are not capable: Or if they were, it ſhou'd be to you as a Mortification; for ſure to pleaſe a Fool is ſome degree of Folly.

Milla. I pleaſe my ſelf——Beſides ſometimes to converſe with Fools, is for my Health.

Mira. Your Health! Is there a worſe Diſeaſe then the Converſation of Fools?

Milla. Yes, the Vapours; Fools are Phyſick for it, next to Aſſa-fœtida. Mira.

Mira. You are not in a Course of Fools?

Milla. Mirabell, If you persist in this offensive Freedom—You'll displease me——I think I must resolve after all, not to have you——We shan't agree.

Mira. Not in our Physick it may be.

Milla. And yet our Distemper in all likelihood will be the same; for we shall be sick of one another. I shan't endure to be reprimanded, nor instructed; 'tis so dull to act always by Advice, and so tedious to be told of ones Faults——I can't bear it. Well, I won't have you Mirabell——I'm resolv'd——I think——You may go——Ha, ha, ha. What wou'd you give, that you cou'd help loving me?

Mira. I would give something that you did not know, I cou'd not help it.

Milla. Come, don't look grave then. Well, what do you say to me?

Mira. I say that a Man may as soon make a Friend by his Wit, or a Fortune by his Honesty, as win a Woman with plain Dealing and Sincerity.

Milla. Sententious Mirabell! Prithee don't look with that violent and inflexible wise Face, like Solomon at the dividing of the Child in an old Tapestry-hanging.

Mira. You are merry, Madam, but I wou'd perswade you for one Moment to be serious.

Milla. What, with that Face? No, if you keep your Countenance, 'tis impossible I shou'd hold mine. Well, after all, there is something very moving in a love-sick Face. Ha, ha, ha——Well I won't laugh, don't be peevish——Heigho! Now I'll be melancholly, as melancholly as a Watch-light. Well Mirabell, If ever you will win me woe me now——Nay, if you are so tedious, fare you well;——I see they are walking away.

Mira. Can you not find in the variety of your Disposition one Moment——

Milla. To hear you tell me that Foible's married, and your Plot like to speed——No.

Mira. But how you came to know it——

Milla. Unless by the help of the Devil you can't imagine; ununleſs ſhe ſhou'd tell me her ſelf. Which of the two it may have been, I will leave you to conſider ; and when you have done thinking of that ; think of me. [Exit.

Mira. I have ſomething more——Gone——Think of you! To think of a Whirlwind, tho' 'twere in a Whirlwind, were a Caſe of more ſteady Contemplation ; a very tranquility of Mind and Manſion. A Fellow that lives in a Windmill, has not a more whimſical Dwelling than the Heart of a Man that is lodg'd in a Woman. There is no Point of the Compaſs to which they cannot turn, and by which they are not turn'd ; and by one as well as another; for Motion not Method is their Occupation. To know this, and yet continue to be in Love, is to be made wiſe from the Dictates of Reaſon, and yet perſevere to play the Fool by the force of Inſtinct——O here come my pair of Turtles——What, billing ſo ſweetly! Is not Valentine's Day over with you yet?

Enter Waitwell and Foible.

Sirrah, Waitwell, why ſure you think you were married for your own Recreation, and not for my Conveniency.

Wait. Your Pardon, Sir. With Submiſſion, we have indeed been ſolacing in lawful Delights; but ſtill with an Eye to Buſineſs, Sir. I have inſtructed her as well as I cou'd. If ſhe can take your Directions as readily as my Inſtructions, Sir, your Affairs are in a proſperous way.

Mira. Give you Joy, Mrs. Foible.

Foib. O las Sir, I'm ſo aſham'd——I'm afraid my Lady has been in a thouſand Inquietudes for me. But I proteſt, Sir, I made as much haſte as I could.

Wait. That ſhe did indeed, Sir. It was my Fault that ſhe did not make more.

Mira. That I believe.

Foib. But I told my Lady as you inſtructed me, Sir. That I had a proſpect of ſeeing Sir Rowland your Uncle; and that I wou'd put her Ladyſhip's Picture in my Pocket to ſhew him; which I'll be ſure to ſay has made him ſo enamour'd of her Beauty, that he burns with Impatience to lie at her Ladyſhip's Feet and worſhip the Original.

Mira.

Mira. Excellent Foible! Matrimony has made you eloquent in Love.

Wait. I think she has profited, Sir. I think so.

Foib. You have seen Madam Millamant, Sir?

Mira. Yes.

Foib. I told her Sir, because I did not know that you might find an Opportunity; she had so much Company last Night.

Mira. Your Diligence will merit more——In the mean time—— [Gives Mony.

Foib. O dear Sir, your humble Servant.

Wait. Spouse.

Mira. Stand off Sir, not a Penny——Go on and prosper, Foible——The Lease shall be made good and the Farm stock'd, if we succeed.

Foib. I don't question your Generosity, Sir: And you need not doubt of Success. If you have no more Commands Sir, I'll be gone; I'm sure my Lady is at her Toilet, and can't dress till I come——O Dear, I'm sure that [Looking out. was Mrs. Marwood that went by in a Mask; if she has seen me with you I'm sure she'll tell my Lady. I'll make haste home and prevent her. Your Servant Sir. B'w'y Waitwell. [Exit Foible.

Wait. Sir Rowland if you please. The Jade's so pert upon her Preferment she forgets her self.

Mira. Come Sir, will you endeavour to forget your self——And transform into Sir Rowland.

Wait. Why Sir; it will be impossible I shou'd remember my self——Married, Knighted and attended all in one Day! 'Tis enough to make any Man forget himself. The Difficulty will be how to recover my Acquaintance and Familiarity with my former self; and fall from my Transformation to a Reformation into Waitwell. Nay, I shan't be quite the same Waitwell neither —— For now I remember me, I am married, and can't be my own Man again.

Ay there's the Grief; that's the sad change of Life;
To lose my Title, and yet keep my Wife. [Exeunt.

ACT

ACT III. SCENE I.

A Room in Lady Wishfort's House.

Lady Wishfort at her Toilet, Peg waiting.

Lady. MErciful, no News of Foible yet?

Peg. No, Madam.

Lady. I have no more patience——If I have not fretted my self till I am pale again, there's no Veracity in me. Fetch me the Red——The Red, do you hear, Sweet-heart? An errant Ash colour, as I'm a Person. Look you how this Wench stirs! Why dost thou not fetch me a little Red? Did'st thou not hear me, Mopus?

Peg. The red Ratifia does your Ladyship mean, or the Cherry Brandy?

Lady. Ratifia, Fool. No Fool. Not the Ratifia Fool——Grant me patience! I mean the Spanish Paper Idiot, Complexion Darling. Paint, Paint, Paint, dost thou understand that, Changeling, dangling thy Hands like Bobbins before thee. Why dost thou not stir Puppet? thou wooden Thing upon Wires.

Peg. Lord, Madam, your Ladyship is so impatient—— I cannot come at the Paint, Madam; Mrs. Foible has lock'd it up, and carry'd the Key with her.

Lady. A Pox take you both———Fetch me the Chery-Brandy then——[Exit Peg.] I'm as pale and as faint, I look like Mrs. Qualmsick the Curate's Wife, that's always breeding——Wench, come, come, Wench, what art thou doing, Sipping? Tasting? Save thee, dost thou not know the Bottle?

Enter Peg with a Bottle and China-cup.

Peg. Madam, I was looking for a Cup.

Lady.

Lady. A Cup, ſave thee, and what a Cup haſt thou brought! Doſt thou take me for a Fairy, to drink out of an Acorn? Why didſt thou not bring thy Thimble? Haſt thou ne'er a Braſs-Thimble clinking in thy Pocket with a bit of Nutmeg? I warrant thee. Come, fill, fill.——So——again. See who that is——[One knocks] Set down the Bottle firſt. Here, here, under the Table——What wou'dſt thou go with the Bottle in thy Hand like a Tapſter. As I'm a Perſon, this Wench has liv'd in an Inn upon the Road, before ſhe came to me, like Maritorne's the Aſturian in Don Quixote. No Foible yet?

Peg. No Madam, Mrs. Marwood.

Lady. O Marwood, let her come in. Come in good Marwood.

Enter Mrs. Marwood.

Mrs. Mar. I'm ſurpriz'd to find your Ladyſhip in diſhabilie at this time of day.

Lady. Foible's a loſt Thing; has been abroad ſince Morning, and never heard of ſince.

Mrs. Mar. I ſaw her but now, as I came mask'd through the Park, in Conference with Mirabell.

Lady. With Mirabell! You call my Blood into my Face, with mentioning that Traytor. She durſt not have the Confidence. I ſent her to Negotiate an Affair, in which if I'm detected I'm undone. If that wheadling Villain has wrought upon Foible to detect me, I'm ruin'd. Oh my dear Friend, I'm a Wretch of Wretches if I'm detected.

Mrs. Mar. O Madam, you cannot ſuſpect Mrs. Foible's Integrity.

Lady. O, he carries Poyſon in his Tongue that wou'd corrupt Integrity it ſelf. If ſhe has given him an Opportunity, ſhe has as good as put her Integrity into his Hands. Ah dear Marwood, what's Integrity to an Opportunity?——Hark! I hear her——Go you Thing and ſend her in. [Ex. Peg. Dear Friend retire into my Cloſet, that I may examine her with more freedom——You'll pardon me dear Friend, I can make bold with you——There are Books over the Chimney——Quarles and Pryn, and the Short View of the Stage, with Bunyan's Works to entertain you. [Exit Marwood.

Enter Foible.

O Foible, where haſt thou been? What haſt thou been doing?

Foib. Madam, I have ſeen the Party.

Lady. But what haſt thou done?

Foib. Nay, 'tis your Ladyſhip has done, and are to do; I have only promis'd. But a Man ſo enamour'd——So tranſported! Well, here it is, all that is left; all that is not kiſs'd away——Well, if worſhipping of Pictures be a Sin——Poor Sir Rowland, I ſay.

Lady. The Miniature has been counted like——But haſt thou not betray'd me, Foible? Haſt thou not detected me to that faithleſs Mirabell?——What had'ſt thou to do with him in the Park? Anſwer me, has he got nothing out of thee?

Foib. So, the Devil has been before-hand with me, what ſhall I ſay?——Alas, Madam, cou'd I help it, if I met that confident Thing? Was I in Fault? If you had heard how he us'd me, and all upon your Ladyſhip's Account, I'm ſure you wou'd not ſuſpect my Fidelity. Nay, if that had been the worſt I cou'd have born: But he had a Fling at your Ladyſhip too; and then I could not hold; But Ifaith I gave him his own.

Lady. Me? What did the filthy Fellow ſay?

Foib. O Madam; 'tis a ſhame to ſay what he ſaid——With his Taunts and his Fleers, toſſing up his Noſe. Humh (ſays he) what you are a hatching ſome Plot (ſays he) you are ſo early abroad, or Catering (ſays he) ferreting for ſome disbanded Officer I warrant——Half Pay is but thin Subſiſtance (ſays he)——Well, what Penſion does your Lady propoſe? Let me ſee (ſays he) what ſhe muſt come down pretty deep now, ſhe's ſuper-annuated (ſays he) and——

Lady. Odsmy Life, I'll have him, I'll have him murder'd. I'll have him poyſon'd. Where does he eat? I'll marry a Drawer to have him poyſon'd in his Wine. I'll ſend for Robin from Lockets——Immediately.

Foib.

Foib. Poyſon him? Poyſoning's too good for him. Starve him Madam, ſtarve him, marry Sir Rowland and get him diſinherited. O you would bleſs your ſelf, to hear what he ſaid.

Lady. A Villain, ſuperanuated!

Foib. Humh (ſays he) I hear you are laying Deſigns againſt me too (ſays he), and Mrs. Millamant is to marry my Uncle; (he does not ſuſpect a Word of your Ladyſhip;) but (ſays he) I'll fit you for that, I warrant you (ſays he) I'll hamper you for that (ſays he) you and your old Frippery too (ſays he) I'll handle you——

Lady. Audacious Villain! handle me, wou'd he durſt—Frippery? old Frippery! Was there ever ſuch a foul-mouth'd Fellow? I'll be married to Morrow, I'll be contracted to Night.

Foib. The ſooner the better, Madam.

Lady. Will Sir Rowland be here, ſay'ſt thou? when Foible?

Foib. Incontinently, Madam. No new Sheriff's Wife expects the return of her Husband after Knighthood, with that Impatience in which Sir Rowland burns for the dear hour of kiſſing your Ladyſhip's Hands after Dinner.

Lady. Frippery? Superannuated Frippery! I'll Frippery the Villain; I'll reduce him to Frippery and Rags: A Tatterdemallion——I hope to ſee him hung with Tatters, like a long Lane Pent-houſe, or a Gibbet-thief. A ſlander mouth'd Railer: I warrant the Spendthrift Prodigal's in Debt as much as the Million Lottery, or the whole Court upon a Birth day. I'll ſpoil his Credit with his Taylor. Yes, he ſhall have my Niece with her Fortune, he ſhall.

Foib. He! I hope to ſee him lodge in Ludgate firſt, and Angle into Black Friers for Braſs Farthings, with an old Mitten.

Lady. Ay dear Foible; thank thee for that dear Foible. He has put me out of all patience. I ſhall never recompoſe my Features, to receive Sir Rowland with any Oeconomy of Face. This Wretch has fretted me that I am abſolutely decay'd. Look Foible.

Foib. Your Ladyſhip has frown'd a little too raſhly, indeed Madam. There are ſome Cracks diſcernable in the white Verniſh.

Lady. Let me ſee the Glaſs——Cracks, ſay'ſt thou? Why I am arrantly flea'd——I look like an old peel'd Wall. Thou muſt repair me Foible, before Sir Rowland comes; or I ſhall never keep up to my Picture.

Foib. I warrant you, Madam; a little Art once made your Picture like you; and now a little of the ſame Art, muſt make you like your Picture. Your Picture muſt ſit for you, Madam.

Lady. But art thou ſure Sir Rowland will not fail to come? Or will a not fail when he does come? Will he be Importunate Foible, and puſh? For if he ſhou'd not be Importunate——I ſhall never break Decorums——I ſhall die with Confuſion, if I am forc'd to advance——Oh no, I can never advance——I ſhall ſwoon if he ſhou'd expect advances. No, I hope Sir Rowland is better bred, than to put a Lady to the neceſſity of breaking her Forms. I won't be too coy neither.——I won't give him deſpair——But a little Diſdain is not amiſs; a little Scorn is alluring.

Foib. A little Scorn becomes your Ladyſhip.

Lady. Yes, but Tenderneſs becomes me beſt——A ſort of a dyingneſs——You ſee that Picture has a ſort of a——Ha Foible? A ſwimmineſs in the Eyes——Yes, I'll look ſo——My Niece affects it; but ſhe wants Features. Is Sir Rowland handſome? Let my Toilet be remov'd——I'll dreſs above. I'll receive Sir Rowland here. Is he handſome? Don't anſwer me. I won't know: I'll be ſurpriz'd. I'll be taken by Surprize.

Foib. By Storm, Madam. Sir Rowland's a briſk Man.

Lady. Is he! O then he'll Importune, if he's a briſk Man. I ſhall ſave Decorums if Sir Rowland importunes. I have a mortal Terror at the apprehenſion of offending againſt Decorums. Nothing but Importunity can ſurmount Decorums. O I'm glad he's a briſk Man. Let my Things be remov'd, good Foible. [Exit.

Enter

Enter Mrs. Fainall.

Mrs. Fain. O Foible, I have been in a Fright, leaſt I ſhou'd come too late. That Devil Marwood ſaw you in the Park with Mirabell, and I'm afraid will diſcover it to my Lady.

Foib. Diſcover what, Madam?

Mrs. Fain. Nay, nay, put not on that ſtrange Face. I am privy to the whole Deſign, and know that Waitwell, to whom thou wert this morning Married, is to perſonate Mirabell's Uncle, and as ſuch winning my Lady, to involve her in thoſe Difficulties, from which Mirabell only muſt releaſe her, by his making his Conditions to have my Couſin and her Fortune left to her own diſpoſal.

Foib. O dear Madam, I beg your Pardon. It was not my Confidence in your Ladyſhip that was deficient; but I thought the former good Correſpondence between your Ladyſhip and Mr. Mirabell, might have hinder'd his communicating this Secret.

Mrs. Fain. Dear Foible forget that.

Foib. O dear Madam, Mr. Mirabell is ſuch a ſweet winning Gentleman——But your Ladyſhip is the Pattern of Generoſity.——Sweet Lady, to be ſo good! Mr. Mirabell cannot chuſe but be grateful. I find your Ladyſhip has his Heart ſtill. Now, Madam, I can ſafely tell your Ladyſhip our ſucceſs, Mrs. Marwood had told my Lady; but I warrant I manag'd my ſelf. I turn'd it all for the better. I told my Lady that Mr. Mirabell rail'd at her. I laid horrid Things to his charge, I'll vow; and my Lady is ſo incens'd, that ſhe'll be contracted to Sir Rowland to Night, ſhe ſays;—I warrant I work'd her up, that he may have her for asking for, as they ſay of a Welch Maiden-head.

Mrs. Fain. O rare Foible!

Foib. Madam, I beg your Ladyſhip to acquaint Mr. Mirabell of his ſucceſs. I wou'd be ſeen as little as poſſible to ſpeak to him,——beſides, I believe Madam Marwood watches me.——She has a Month's mind; but I know Mr. Mirabell can't abide her.——[Enter Footman.] John——remove my Lady's Toilet. Madam your Servant: My Lady is ſo impatient, I fear ſhe'll come for me, if I ſtay.

Mrs.

Mrs. Fain. I'll go with you up the back Stairs, leſt I ſhou'd meet her. [Exeunt.

Enter Mrs. Marwood.

Mrs. Mar. Indeed Mrs. Engine, is it thus with you? Are you become a go-between of this Importance? Yes, I ſhall watch you. Why this Wench is the Paſs-par-tout, a very Maſter-Key to every Bodies ſtrong Box. My Friend Fainall, have you carried it ſo ſwimmingly? I thought there was ſomething in it; but it ſeems it's over with you. Your loathing is not from a want of Appetite then, but from a Surfeit. Elſe you could never be ſo cool to fall from a Principal to be an Aſſiſtant; to procure for him! A Pattern of Generoſity, that I confeſs. Well, Mr. Fainall, you have met with your Match.——O Man, Man! Woman, Woman! The Devil's an Aſs: If I were a Painter, I wou'd draw him like an Idiot, a Driveler, with a Bib and Bells. Man ſhou'd have his Head and Horns, and Woman the reſt of him. Poor ſimple Fiend! Madam Marwood has a Months Mind, but he can't abide her——'Twere better for him you had not been his Confeſſor in that Affair; without you cou'd have kept his Counſel cloſer. I ſhall not prove another Pattern of Generoſity; and ſtalk for him, till he takes his Stand to aim at a Fortune, he has not oblig'd me to that, with thoſe Exceſſes of himſelf; and now I'll have none of him. Here comes the good Lady, panting ripe; with a Heart full of Hope, and a Head full of Care, like any Chymiſt upon the Day of Projection.

Enter Lady Wiſhfort.

Lady. O dear Marwood what ſhall I ſay, for this rude forgetfulneſs——But my dear Friend is all Goodneſs.

Mrs. Mar. No Apologies, dear Madam. I have been very well entertained.

Lady. As I'm a Perſon I am in a very Chaos to think I ſhou'd ſo forget my ſelf——But I have ſuch an Olio of Affairs really I know not what to do——[Calls]——Foible——I expect my Nephew Sir Wilfull every moment too——Why Foible——He means to Travel for Improvement. Mrs.

Mrs. Mar. Methinks Sir Wilfull ſhould rather think of Marrying than Travelling at his Years. I hear he is turn'd of Forty.

Lady. O he's in leſs Danger of being ſpoil'd by his Travels——I am againſt my Nephews marrying too young. It will be time enough when he comes back, and has acquir'd Diſcretion to chooſe for himſelf.

Mrs. Mar. Methinks Mrs. Millamant and he wou'd make a very fit Match. He may Travel afterwards. 'Tis a Thing very uſual with young Gentlemen.

Lady. I promiſe you I have thought on't——And ſince 'tis your Judgment, I'll think on't again. I aſſure you I will; I value your Judgment extreamly. On my Word I'll propoſe it.

Enter Foible.

Come, come Foible——I had forgot my Nephew will be here before Dinner——I muſt make haſte.

Foib. Mr. Witwoud and Mr. Petulant, are come to Dine with your Ladyſhip.

Lady. O Dear, I can't appear till I'm dreſsld. Dear Marwood ſhall I be free with you again, and beg you to entertain 'em. I'll make all imaginable haſte. Dear Friend excuſe me. [Exit Lady and Foible.

Enter Mrs. Millamant and Mincing.

Milla. Sure never any thing was ſo Unbred as that odious Man——Marwood, your Servant.

Mrs. Mar. You have a Colour, what's the matter?

Milla. That horrid Fellow Petulant, has provok'd me into into a Flame——I have broke my Fan——Mincing, lend me yours;——Is not all the Powder out of my Hair?

Mrs. Mar. No. What has he done?

Milla. Nay, he has done nothing; he has only talk'd——Nay, he has ſaid nothing neither; but he has contradicted every Thing that has been ſaid. For my part, I thought Witwood and he wou'd have quarrell'd.

Minc.

Minc. I vow Mem, I thought once they wou'd have fit.

Milla. Well, 'tis a lamentable thing I'll ſwear, that one has not the liberty of chooſing one's Acquaintance, as one does one's Cloaths.

Mrs. Mar. If we had the liberty, we ſhou'd be as weary of one Set of Acquaintance, tho' never ſo good, as we are of one Suit, tho' never ſo fine. A Fool and a Doily Stuff wou'd now and then find Days of Grace, and be worn for variety.

Milla. I could conſent to wear 'em, if they wou'd wear alike; but Fools never wear out——they are ſuch Drap-duberry Things! without one cou'd give 'em to one's Chamber-maid after a day or two.

Mrs. Mar. 'Twere better ſo indeed. Or what think you of the Play-houſe? A fine gay gloſſy Fool, ſhou'd be given there, like a new masking Habit, after the Maſquerade is over, and we have done with the Diſguiſe. For a Fool's Viſit is always a Diſguiſe; and never admitted by a Woman of Wit, but to blind her Affair with a Lover of Senſe. If you wou'd but appear bare fac'd now, and own Mirabell; you might as eaſily put off Petulant and Witwoud, as your Hood and Scarf. And indeed 'tis time, for the Town has found it: The Secret is grown too big for the Pretence: 'Tis like Mrs. Primly's great Belly; ſhe may lace it down before, but it burniſhes on her Hips. Indeed, Millamant, you can no more conceal it, then my Lady Strammel can her Face, that goodly Face, which in defiance of her Rheniſh-wine Tea, will not be comprehended in a Mask.

Milla. I'll take my Death, Marwood, you are more Cenſorious, than a decay'd Beauty, or a diſcarded Toſt; Mincing, tell the Men they may come up. My Aunt is not dreſſing; their Folly is leſs provoking than your Mallice, the Town has found it. [Exit. Mincing.] What has it found? That Mirabell loves me is no more a Secret, than it is a Secret that you diſcover'd it to my Aunt, or than the Reaſon why you diſcover'd it is a Secret.

Mrs. Mar. You are nettl'd.

Milla. You'r miſtaken. Ridiculous!

Mrs.

Mrs. Mar. Indeed my Dear, you'll tear another Fan, if you don't mitigate thoſe violent Airs.

Milla. O ſilly! Ha, ha, ha. I cou'd laugh immoderately. Poor Mirabell! his Conſtancy to me has quite deſtroy'd his Complaiſance for all the World beſide. I ſwear, I never enjoin'd it him, to be ſo coy——If I had the Vanity to think he wou'd obey me; I wou'd command him to ſhew more Gallantry——'Tis hardly well bred to be ſo particular on one Hand, and ſo inſenſible on the other. But I deſpair to prevail, and ſo let him follow his own way. Ha, ha, ha. Pardon me, dear Creature, I muſt laugh, Ha, ha, ha; tho' I grant you 'tis a little barbarous, Ha, ha, ha.

Mrs. Mar. What pity 'tis, ſo much fine Raillery, and deliver'd with ſo ſignificant Geſture, ſhou'd be ſo unhappily directed to miſcarry.

Milla. Hæ? Dear Creature I ask your Pardon——I ſwear I did not mind you.

Mrs. Mar. Mr. Mirabell and you both, may think it a Thing impoſſible, when I ſhall tell him, by telling you——

Milla. O Dear, what? for it is the ſame thing, if I hear it——Ha, ha, ha.

Mrs. Mar. That I deteſt him, hate him, Madam.

Milla. O Madam, why ſo do I——And yet the Creature loves me, Ha, ha, ha. How can one forbear laughing to think of it——I am a Sybil if I am not amaz'd to think what he can ſee in me. I'll take my Death, I think you are handſomer——And within a Year or two as young.——If you cou'd but ſtay for me, I ſhou'd overtake you——But that cannot be——Well, that Thought makes me Melancholly——Now I'll be ſad.

Mrs. Mar. Your merry Note may be chang'd ſooner than you think.

Milla. Dee ſay ſo? Then I'm reſolv'd I'll have a Song to keep up my Spirits.

Enter Mincing.

Minc. The Gentlemen ſtay but to Comb, Madam; and will wait on you.

Milla. Desire Mrs. ——— that is in the next Room to sing the Song, I wou'd have learnt Yesterday. You shall hear it Madam———Not that there's any great matter in it———But 'tis agreeable to my Humour.

Set by Mr. John Eccles, and Sung by Mrs. Hodgson.

SONG.

I.

LOVE's but the frailty of the Mind,
When 'tis not with Ambition join'd;
A sickly Flame, which if not fed expires;
And feeding, wasts in Self-consuming Fires.

II.

'Tis not to wound a wanton Boy
Or am'rous Youth, that gives the Joy;
But 'tis the Glory to have pierc'd a Swain,
For whom inferiour Beauties sigh'd in vain.

III.

Then I alone the Conquest prize
When I insult a Rival's Eyes:
If there's Delight in Love, 'tis when I see
That Heart which others bleed for, bleed for me.

Enter Petulant and Witwoud.

Milla. Is your Animosity compos'd, Gentlemen?

Wit. Raillery, Raillery, Madam, we have have no Animosity———We hit off a little Wit now and then, but no Ani-

Animosity——The falling out of Wits is like the falling out of Lovers——We agree in the main, like Treble and Base. Ha, Petulant!

Pet. Ay in the main——But when I have a Humour to contradict.

Wit. Ay, when he has a Humour to contradict, then I contradict too. What, I know my Cue. Then we contradict one another like two Battle-dores: For Contradictions beget one another like Jews.

Pet. If he says Black's Black——If I have a Humour to say 'tis Blue——Let that pass——All's one for that. If I have a Humour to prove it, it must be granted.

Wit. Not positively must——But it may——It may.

Pet. Yes, it positively must, upon Proof positive.

Wit. Ay, upon Proof positive it must; but upon Proof presumptive it only may. That's a Logical Distinction now, Madam.

Mrs. Mar. I perceive your Debates are of Importance and very learnedly handl'd.

Pet. Importance is one Thing, and Learning's another; but a Debate's a Debate, that I assert.

Wit. Petulant's an Enemy to Learning; he relies altogether on his Parts.

Pet. No, I'm no Enemy to Learning; it hurts not me.

Mrs. Mar. That's a Sign indeed its no Enemy to you.

Pet. No, no, it's no Enemy to any Body, but them that have it.

Milla. Well, an illiterate Man's my Aversion. I wonder at the Impudence of any Illiterate Man, to offer to make Love.

Wit. That I confess I wonder at too.

Milla. Ah! to marry an Ignorant! that can hardly Read or Write.

Pet. Why shou'd a Man be ever the further from being married tho' he can't Read, any more than he is from being Hang'd. The Ordinary's paid for setting the Psalm, and the Parish-Priest for reading the Ceremony. And for the reſt which is to follow in both Caſes, a Man may do it without Book——So all's one for that.

Milla. Dee hear the Creature? Lord, here's Company, I'll be gone. [Exeunt Millamant and Mincing.

Wit. In the Name of Bartlemew and his Fair, what have we here?

Mrs. Mar. 'Tis your Brother, I fancy. Don't you know him?

Wit. Not I——Yes, I think it is he——I've almoſt forgot him; I have not ſeen him ſince the Revolution.

Enter Sir Wilfull Witwoud in a Country Riding Habit, and Servant to Lady Wiſhfort.

Serv. Sir, my Lady's dreſſing. Here's Company; if you pleaſe to walk in, in the mean time.

Sir Will. Dreſſing! What it's but Morning here I warrant with you in London; we ſhou'd count it towards Afternoon in our Parts, down in Shropſhire——Why then belike my Aunt han't din'd yet——Ha, Friend?

Serv. Your Aunt, Sir?

Sir Will. My Aunt Sir, yes my Aunt Sir, and your Lady Sir; your Lady is my Aunt, Sir——Why, what do'ſt thou not know me, Friend? Why then ſend Somebody here that does. How long haſt thou liv'd with thy Lady, Fellow, ha!

Serv. A Week, Sir; longer than any Body in the Houſe, except my Lady's Woman.

Sir Will. Why then belike thou doſt not know thy Lady, if thou ſee'ſt her, ha Friend?

Serv. Why truly Sir, I cannot ſafely ſwear to her Face in a Morning, before ſhe is dreſs'd. 'Tis like I may give a ſhrew'd gueſs at her by this time.

Sir Will. Well prithee try what thou can'ſt do; if thou can'ſt not gueſs, enquire her out, do'ſt hear Fellow? And tell her, her Nephew Sir Wilfull Witwoud is in the Houſe.

Serv. I ſhall, Sir.

Sir Will. Hold ye, hear me Friend; a Word with you in your Ear, prithee who are theſe Gallants?

Serv.

Serv. Really Sir, I can't tell; here come ſo many here, 'tis hard to know 'em all. [Exit Servant.

Sir Will. Oons this Fellow knows leſs than a Starling; I don't think a' knows his own Name.

Mrs. Mar. Mr. Witwoud, your Brother is not behind Hand in forgetfulneſs——I fancy he has forgot you too.

Wit. I hope ſo——The Devil take him that remembers firſt, I ſay.

Sir Will. Save you Gentlemen and Lady.

Mrs. Mar. For ſhame Mr. Witwoud; why won't you ſpeak to him?——And you, Sir.

Wit. Petulant ſpeak.

Pet. And you, Sir.

Sir Will. No Offence, I hope. [Salutes Marwood.

Mrs. Mar. No ſure, Sir.

Wit. This is a vile Dog, I ſee that already. No Offence! Ha, ha, ha, to him; to him Petulant, ſmoke him.

Pet. It ſeems as if you had come a Journey, Sir; hem, hem. [Surveying him round.

Sir Will. Very likely, Sir, that it may ſeem ſo.

Pet. No Offence, I hope, Sir,

Wit. Smoke the Boots, the Boots; Petulant, the Boots; Ha, ha, ha.

Sir Will. May be not, Sir; thereafter as 'tis meant, Sir.

Pet. Sir, I preſume upon the Information of your Boots.

Sir Will. Why, 'tis like you may, Sir: If you are not ſatisfy'd with the Information of my Boots, Sir, if you will ſtep to the Stable, you may enquire further of my Horſe, Sir.

Pet. Your Horſe, Sir! Your Horſe is an Aſs, Sir!

Sir Will. Do you ſpeak by way of Offence, Sir?

Mrs. Mar. The Gentleman's merry, that's all, Sir——S'life, we ſhall have a Quarrel betwixt an Horſe and an Aſs, before they find one another out. You muſt not take any Thing amiſs from your Friends, Sir. You are among your Friends here, tho' it may be you don't know it——If I am not miſtaken, you are Sir Willfull Witwoud.

Sir Will. Right Lady; I am Sir Willfull Witwoud, ſo I write my ſelf; no offence to any Body, I hope; and Nephew to the Lady Wiſhfort, of this Manſion.

Mrs. Mar. Don't you know this Gentleman, Sir?

Sir Will. Hum! What ſure 'tis not——Yea by'r Lady, but 'tis——'Sheart I know not whether 'tis or no——Yea but 'tis, by the Rekin. Brother Anthony! What Tony Ifaith! What do'ſt thou not know me? By'r Lady nor I thee, thou art ſo Becravated, and Beperriwig'd——'Sheart why do'ſt not ſpeak? Art thou o'er-joy'd?

Wit. Odſo Brother, is it you? Your Servant Brother.

Sir Will. Your Servant! Why yours, Sir. Your Servant again——'Sheart, and your Friend and Servant to that——And a——(puff) and a flap Dragon for your Service, Sir: And a Hare's Foot, and a Hare's Scut for your Service, Sir; an you be ſo cold and ſo courtly!

Wit. No offence, I hope, Brother.

Sir Will. 'Sheart, Sir, but there is, and much offence.——A pox, is this your Inns o' Court breeding, not to know your Friends and your Relations, your Elders, and your Betters?

Wit. Why Brother Willfull of Salop, you may be as ſhort as a Shrewsbury Cake, if you pleaſe. But I tell you, 'tis not modiſh to know Relations in Town. You think you're in the Country, where great lubberly Brothers ſlabber and kiſs one another when they meet, like a Call of Serjeants——'Tis not the faſhion here; 'tis not indeed, dear Brother.

Sir Will. The Faſhion's a Fool; and you're a Fop, dear Brother. 'Sheart, I've ſuſpected this——By'r Lady I conjecture'd you were a Fop, ſince you began to change the Stile of your Letters, and write in a ſcrap of Paper gilt round the Edges, no broader than a Subpœna. I might expect this, when you left off Honour'd Brother; and hoping you are in good Health, and ſo forth——To begin with a Rat me, Knight, I'm ſo ſick of a laſt Nights debauch——O'ds heart, and then tell a familiar Tale of a Cock and a Bull, and a Whore and a Bottle, and ſo conclude——You cou'd write News before you were out of your Time, when you liv'd with with honeſt Pumple Noſe the Attorney of Furnival's Inn—You cou'd intreat to be remember'd then to your Friends round the Rekin. We cou'd have Gazetts then, and Dawks's Letter, and the weekly Bill, 'till of late Days.

Pet. S'life, Witwoud, were you ever an Attorney's Clerk? Of the Family of the Furnivals. Ha, ha, ha!

Wit. Ay, ay, but that was for a while. Not long, not long; pſhaw, I was not in my own Power then. An Orphan, and this Fellow was my Guardian; ay, ay, I was glad to conſent to that Man to come to London. He had the diſpoſal of me then. If I had not agreed to that, I might have been bound Prentice to a Felt-maker in Shrewsbury; this Fellow wou'd have bound me to a Maker of Felts.

Sir Will. 'Sheart, and better than to be bound to a Maker of Fops; where, I ſuppoſe, you have ſerv'd your Time; and now you may ſet up for your ſelf.

Mrs. Mar. You intend to Travel, Sir, as I'm inform'd.

Sir Will. Belike I may Madam. I may chance to ſail upon the ſalt Seas, if my Mind hold.

Pet. And the Wind ſerve.

Sir Will. Serve or not ſerve, I ſhant ask Licenſe of you, Sir; nor the Weather-Cock your Companion. I direct my Diſcourſe to the Lady, Sir: 'Tis like my Aunt may have told you, Madam———Yes, I have ſettl'd my Concerns, I may ſay now, and am minded to ſee Foreign Parts. If anhow that the Peace holds, whereby that is, Taxes abate.

Mrs. Mar. I thought you had deſign'd for France at all Adventures.

Sir Will. I can't tell that; 'tis like I may, and 'tis like I may not. I am ſomewhat dainty in making a Reſolution, ——becauſe when I make it I keep it. I don't ſtand ſhill I, ſhall I, then; if I ſay't, I'll do't: But I have Thoughts to tarry a ſmall matter in Town, to learn ſomewhat of your Lingo firſt, before I croſs the Seas. I'd gladly have a ſpice of your French as they ſay, whereby to hold diſcourſe in Foreign Countries.

Mrs. Mar. Here is an Academy in Town for that uſe.

Sir Will. There is? 'Tis like there may.

Mrs.

Mrs. Mar. No doubt you will return very much improv'd.

Wit. Yes, refin'd, like a Dutch Skipper from a Whale-fiſhing.

Enter Lady Wiſhfort and Fainall.

Lady. Nephew, you are welcome.

Sir Will. Aunt, your Servant.

Fain. Sir Willfull, your moſt faithful Servant.

Sir Will. Couſin Fainall, give me your Hand.

Lady. Couſin Witwoud, your Servant; Mr. Petulant, your Servant.——Nephew, you are welcome again. Will you drink any Thing after your Journey, Nephew, before you eat? Dinner's almoſt ready.

Sir Will. I'm very well I thank you Aunt——However, I thank you for your courteous Offer. 'Sheart, I was afraid you wou'd have been in the faſhion too, and have remember'd to have forgot your Relations. Here's your Couſin Tony, belike, I may'nt call him Brother for fear of offence.

Lady. O he's a Rallier, Nephew——My Couſin's a Wit. And your great Wits always rally their beſt Friends to chuſe. When you have been abroad, Nephew, you'll underſtand Raillery better. [Fain. and Mrs. Marwood talk a-part.

Sir Will. Why then let him hold his Tongue in the mean time; and rail when that day comes.

Enter Mincing.

Minc. Mem, I come to acquaint your Laſhip that Dinner is impatient.

Sir Will. Impatient? Why then belike it won't ſtay, 'till I pull off my Boots. Sweet-heart, can you help me to a pair of Slippers?——My Man's with his Horſes, I warrant.

Lady. Fie, fie, Nephew, you wou'd not pull off your Boots here——Go down into the Hall——Dinner ſhall ſtay for you——My Nephew's a little unbred, you'll pardon him, Madam——Gentlemen will you walk. Marwood——

Mrs. Mar. I'll follow you, Madam——Before Sir Willfull is ready. [Manent Mrs. Marwood and Fainall.

Fain.

Fain. Why then Foible's a Bawd, an Errant, Rank, Match-making Bawd. And I it seems am a Husband, a Rank-Husband; and my Wife a very Errant, Rank-Wife,—all in the Way of the World. 'S death to be an Anticipated Cuckold, a Cuckold in Embrio? Sure I was born with budding Antlers like a young Satyre, or a Citizens Child. 'S death to be Out-Witted, to be Out-Jilted — Out-Matrimony'd,—If I had kept my speed like a Stag, 'twere somewhat,—but to crawl after, with my Horns like a Snail, and out-strip'd by my Wife—'tis Scurvy Wedlock.

Mrs. Mar. Then shake it off, You have often wish'd for an opportunity to part;—and now you have it. But first prevent their Plot,—the half of Millamant's Fortune is too Considerable to be parted with, to a Foe, to Mirabell.

Fain. Dam him, that had been mine—had you not made that fond discovery—that had been forfeited, had they been Married. My Wife had added Lustre to my Horns, by that Encrease of fortune,—I cou'd have worn 'em tipt with Gold, tho' my forehead had been furnish'd like a Deputy-Lieutenant's Hall.

Mrs. Mar. They may prove a Cap of Maintenance to you still, if you can away with your Wife. And she's no worse than when you had her—I dare swear she had given up her Game, before she was Marry'd.

Fain. Hum! That may be—She might throw up her Cards; but Ile be hang'd if she did not put Pam in her Pocket.

Mrs. Mar. You Married her to keep you; and if you can contrive to have her keep you better than you expected; why should you not keep her longer than you intended?

Fain. The means, the means.

Mrs. Mar. Discover to my Lady your Wife's conduct; threaten to part with her—My Lady loves her, and will come to any Composition to save her reputation, take the opportunity of breaking it, just upon the discovery of this imposture. My Lady will be enraged beyond bounds, and Sacrifice Neice, and Fortune, and all at that Conjuncture. And let me alone to keep her warm, if she should Flag in her part, I will not fail to prompt her.

Fain. Faith this has an appearance.

Mrs. Mar. I'm sorry I hinted to my Lady to endeavour a match between Millamant and Sir Wilfull, that may be an Obstacle.

Fain. O, for that matter leave me to manage him; I'll disable him for that, he will drink like a Dane: after dinner, I'll set his hand in.

Mrs. Mar. Well, how do you stand affected towards your Lady?

Fain. Why faith I'm thinking of it.—Let me see—I am married already; so that's over,—my Wife has plaid the Jade with me—Well, that's over too—I never lov'd her, or if I had, why that wou'd have been over too by this time—Jealous of her I cannot be, for I am certain; so there's an end of Jealousie. Weary of her, I am, and shall be—No, there's no end of that; No, no, that were too much to hope. Thus far concerning my repose. Now for my Reputation,—As to my own, I married not for it; so that's out of the Question,—And as to my part in my Wife's—Why she had parted with hers before; so bringing none to me, she can take none from me; 'tis against all rule of Play, that I should lose to one, who has not wherewithal to stake.

Mrs. Mar. Besides you forget, Marriage is honourable.

Fain. Hum! Faith and that's well thought on; Marriage is honourable as you say; and if so, Wherefore should Cuckoldom be a discredit, being deriv'd from so honourable a root?

Mrs. Mar. Nay I know not; if the root be Honourable, why not the Branches?

Fain. So, so, why this point's clear,—Well how do we proceed?

Mrs. Mar. I will contrive a Letter which shall be deliver'd to my Lady at the time when that Rascal who is to act Sir Rowland is with her. It shall come as from an unknown hand—for the less I appear to know of the truth truth—the better I can play the Incendiary. Beſides I would not have Foible provok'd if I cou'd help it,—— becauſe you know ſhe knows ſome paſſages.—Nay I expect all will come out—But let the Mine be ſprung firſt, and then I care not if I'm diſcover'd.

Fain. If the worſt come to the worſt,—I'll turn my Wife to Graſs—I have already a deed of Settlement of the beſt part of her Eſtate; which I wheadl'd out of her; And that you ſhall partake at leaſt.

Mrs. Mar. I hope you are convinc'd that I hate Mirabell. now you'll be no more Jealous.

Fain. Jealous no,—by this Kiſs—let Husbands be Jealous; But let the Lover ſtill believe. Or if he doubt, let it be only to endear his pleaſure, and prepare the Joy that follows, when he proves his Miſtreſs true; but let Husbands doubts Convert to endleſs Jealouſie; or if they have belief, let it Corrupt to Superſtition, and blind Credulity. I am ſingle; and will herd no more with 'em. True, I wear the badge; but I'll diſown the Order. And ſince I take my leave of 'em, I care not if I leave 'em a common Motto, to their common Creſt.

All Husbands muſt, or pain, or ſhame, endure;
The Wife too Jealous are, Fools too ſecure.

[Exeunt.

ACT IV. SCENE I.

[Scene Continues.]

Enter Lady Wishfort and Foible.

Lady. IS Sir Rowland coming say'st thou, Foible? and are things in Order?

Foib. Yes, Madam. I have put Wax-Lights in the Sconces; and plac'd the Foot-men in a Row in the Hall, in their best Liveries, with the Coach-man and Postilion to fill up the Equipage.

Lady. Have you pullvill'd the Coach-man and Postilion, that they may not stink of the Stable, when Sir Rowland comes by?

Foib. Yes, Madam.

Lady. And are the Dancers and the Musick ready, that he may be entertain'd in all points with Correspondence to his Passion?

Foib. All is ready, Madam.

Lady. And——well——and how do I look, Foible?

Foib. Most killing well, Madam.

Lady. Well, and how shall I receive him? In what figure shall I give his Heart the first Impression? There is a great deal in the first Impression. Shall I sit?—— No I won't sit——I'll walk——aye I'll walk from the door upon his entrance; and then turn full upon him——No, that will be too sudden. I'll lie ——aye, I'll lie down——I'll receive him in my little dressing Room, there's a Couch—— Yes, yes, I'll give the first Impression on a Couch——I wont lie neither but loll and lean upon one Elbow; with one Foot a little dangling off, Jogging in a thoughtful way——Yes—— and then as soon as he appears, start, ay, start and be surpriz'd, and rise to meet him in a pretty disorder——Yes—— O, nothing nothing is more alluring than a Levee from a Couch in some Confusion. —— It shews the Foot to advantage, and furnishes with Blushes, and re-composing Airs beyond Comparison. Hark! There's a Coach.

Foib. 'Tis he, Madam.

Lady. O dear, has my Nephew made his Addresses to Millamant? I order'd him.

Foib. Sir Wilfull is set into Drinking, Madam, in the Parlour.

Lad. Ods my life, I'll send him to her. Call her down, Foible; bring her hither. I'll send him as I go —— When they are together, then come to me Foible, that I may not be too long alone with Sir Rowland. [Exit.

Enter Mrs. Millamant, and Mrs. Fainall.

Foib. Madam, I stay'd here, to tell your Ladyship that Mr. Mirabell has waited this half hour for an Opportunity to talk with you. Tho' my Lady's Orders were to leave you and Sir Wilfull together. Shall I tell Mr. Mirabell that you are at leisure?

Mill. No —— What would the Dear man have? I am thoughtfull and would amuse my self, —— bid him come another time.

{Repeating and Walking about.} There never yet was Woman made,
Nor shall but to be curs'd.

That's hard!

Fain. You are very fond of Sir John Suckling to day, Millamant, and the Poets.

Mill. He? Ay, and filthy Verses —— So I am.

Foib. Sir Wilfull is coming, Madam. Shall I send Mr. Mirabell away?

Mill. Ay, if you please Foible, send him away, —— Or send him hither, —— just as you will Dear Foible. —— I think I'll see him —— Shall I? Ay, let the Wretch come.

[Repeating.] Thyrsis a Youth of the Inspir'd train ——

Dear Fainall, Entertain Sir Wilfull —— Thou hast Philosophy to undergo a Fool, thou art Married and hast Patience —— I would confer with my own Thoughts.

Fain.

Fain. I am oblig'd to you, that you would make me your Proxy in this Affair; but I have buſineſs of my own.

Enter Sir Wilfull.

O Sir Wilfull; you are come at the Critical Inſtant. There's your Miſtreſs up to the Ears in Love and Contemplation, purſue your Point, now or never.

Sir. Wil. Yes; my Aunt would have it ſo, —I would gladly have been encouraged with a Bottle or two, becauſe I'm ſomewhat wary at firſt, before I am acquainted; —But I hope after a time, I ſhall break my mind —— that is upon further acquaintance, —So for the preſent Coſen, I'll take my leave —— If ſo be you'll be ſo kind to make my Excuſe, I'll return to my Company----

This while Mill. walks about Repeating to her ſelf.

Fain. O fie Sir Wilfull! What, you muſt not be Daunted.

Sir Wil. Daunted, No, that's not it, it is not ſo much for that —— for if ſo be that I ſet on't, I'll do't. But only for the preſent, 'tis ſufficient till further acquaintance, that's all —— your Servant.

Fain. Nay, I'll ſwear you ſhall never loſe ſo favourable an opportunity, if I can help it. I'll leave you together and lock the Door. [Exit.

Sir. Wil. Nay, nay Cozen, —— I have forgot my Gloves, —What dee do? 'Shart a'has lock'd the Door indeed I think —— Nay Cozen Fainall, open the Door —— Pſhaw, What a Vixon trick is this? —— Nay, now a'has ſeen me too —— Cozen, I made bold to paſs thro' as it were, — I think this Door's Inchanted ——.

Mill. [Repeating.] I prithee ſpare me gentle Boy,
Preſs me no more for that ſlight Toy.

Sir. Will. Anan? Cozen, your Servant.

Mill. ——That fooliſh trifle of a heart —— Sir Wilfull!

Sir Wil. Yes, —— your Servant. No offence I hope, Cozen.

Mill. [Repeating.] I ſwear it will not do its part,
Tho' thou do'ſt thine, employ'ſt thy Power and Art.

Natu-

Natural, eaſie Suckling!

Sir. Wil. Anan? Suckling? No ſuch Suckling neither, Cozen, nor Stripling: I thank Heav'n, I'm no Minor.

Mill. Ah Ruſtick! ruder than Gothick.

Sir Wil. Well, Well, I ſhall underſtand your Lingo one of theſe days, Cozen, in the mean while, I muſt anſwer in plain Engliſh.

Mill. Have you any buſineſs with me, Sir Wilfull?

Sir Wil. Not at preſent Cozen, —— Yes, I made bold to ſee, to come and know if that how you were diſpos'd to fetch a walk this Evening, if ſo be that I might not be troubleſome, I wou'd have fought a walk with you.

Mill. A walk? What then?

Sir. Wil. Nay nothing —— Only for the walks ſake, that's all ——

Mill. I Nauſeate walking; 'tis a Country diverſion, I loath the Country and every thing that relates to it.

Sir Wil. Indeed! Hah! Look ye, look ye, you do? Nay, 'tis like you may —— Here are choice of Paſtimes here in Town, as Plays and the like that muſt be confeſs'd indeed.—— Mill. Ah l'etourdie! I hate the Town too.

Sir Wil. Dear Heart, that's much —— Hah! that you ſhou'd hate 'em both! Hah! 'tis like you may; there are ſome can't reliſh the Town, and others can't away with the Country, —— 'tis like you may be one of thoſe, Cozen.

Mill. Ha, ha, ha. Yes, 'tis like I may. —— You have nothing further to ſay to me?

Sir. Wil. Not at preſent, Cozen. —— 'tis like when I have an Opportunity to be more private, —— I may break my mind in ſome meaſure, —— I conjecture you partly gueſs —— However that's as time ſhall try, —— But ſpare to ſpeak and ſpare to ſpeed, as they ſay.

Mill. If it is of no great Importance, Sir Wilfull, you will oblige me to leave me: I have juſt now a little buſineſs. ——

Sir Wil. Enough, enough, Cozen, Yes, yes, all a caſe —— When you're diſpos'd, when you're diſpos'd. Now's as well as another time; and another time as well as now.

All's

All's one for that, —— yes, yes, if your Concerns call you, there's no haſt; it will keep cold as they ſay, —— Coſen, your Servant,

I think this door's lock'd.

Mill. You may go this way Sir.

Sir. Will. Your Servant, then with your leave I'll return to my Company. [Exit.

Mill. Ay, ay, ha, ha, ha.

Like Phœbus ſung the no leſs am'rous Boy.

Enter Mirabell.

Mir. —— Like Daphne ſhe as lovely and as Coy. Do you lock your ſelf up from me, to make my ſearch more Curious? Or is this pretty Artifice Contriv'd, to Signifie that here the Chaſe muſt end, and my purſuit be Crown'd, for you can fly no further. ——

Mill. Vanity! No —— I'll fly and be follow'd to the laſt moment, tho' I am upon the very Verge of Matrimony, I expect you ſhou'd ſolicite me as much as if I were wavering at the grate of a Monaſtery, with one foot over the threſhold. I'll be ſolicited to the very laſt, nay and afterwards.

Mir. What, after the laſt?

Mill. O, I ſhould think I was poor and had nothing to beſtow, If I were reduc'd to an Inglorious eaſe; and free'd from the Agreeable fatigues of ſolicitation.

Mir. But do not you know, that when favours are conferr'd upon Inſtant and tedious Sollicitation, that they diminſh in their value, and that both the giver loſes the grace, and the receiver leſſens his Pleaſure?

Mill. It may be in things of common Application; but never ſure in Love. O, I hate a Lover, that can dare to think, he draws a moments air, Independent on the Bounty of his Miſtreſs. There is not ſo Impudent a thing in Nature, as the ſawcy look of an aſſured man, Confident of of Succeſs. The Pedantick arrogance of a very Husband, has not ſo Pragmatical an Air. Ah! I'll never marry, unleſs I am firſt made ſure of my will and pleaſure.

Mira. Wou'd you have 'em both before Marriage? Or will you be contented with the firſt now, and ſtay for the other till after grace?

Mill. Ah don't be Impertinent——My dear Liberty, ſhall I leave thee? My faithful Solitude, my darling Contemplation muſt I bid you then Adieu? ay-h adieu.---my morning thoughts, agreeable wakings, indolent ſlumbers, all ye douceurs, ye Someils du Matin adieu— I can't do't, 'tis more than Impoſſible —— poſitively Mirabel, I'll lie a Bed in a morning as long as I pleaſe.

Mira. Then I'll get up in a morning as early as I pleaſe.

Mill. Ah! Idle Creature, get up when you will —— and dee hear, I won't be call'd names after I'm Married; poſitively I won't be call'd Names.

Mira. Names!

Mill. Ay as Wife, Spouſe, My dear, Joy, Jewel, Love, Sweet heart and the reſt of that Nauſeous Cant, in which Men and their Wives are ſo fulſomely familiar, —— I ſhall never bear that,——Good Mirabell don't let us be familiar or fond, nor kiſs before folks, like my Lady Fadler and Sr. Francis: Nor goe to Hide-Park together the firſt Sunday in a New Chariot, to provoke Eyes and Whiſpers; And then never to be ſeen there together again; as if we were proud of one another the firſt Week, and aſham'd of one another for ever After. Let us never Viſit together, nor go to a Play together, But let us be very ſtrange and well bred: let us be as ſtrange as if we had been married a great while; and as well bred as if we were not marri'd at all.

Mir. Have you any more Conditions to offer? Hitherto your demands are pretty reaſonable.

Mill. Trifles,——As liberty to pay and receive viſits to and from whom I pleaſe, to write and receive Letters, without Interrogatories or wry Faces on your part. To wear what I pleaſe; and chooſe Converſation with regard only to my own taſte; to have no obligation upon me to converſe with Wits that I don't like, becauſe they are your acquaintance; or to be intimate with Fools, becauſe they may be your Relations. Come to Dinner when I pleaſe, dine in my dreſſing room when I'm out of humour without giving a reaſon. To have my Cloſet Inviolate; to be ſole Empreſs of my Tea-table, which you muſt never preſume to approach without firſt asking leave. And laſtly, where ever I am, you ſhall always knock at the door before you come in. Theſe Articles ſubſcrib'd, If I continue to endure you a little longer, I may by degrees dwindle into a Wife.

Mir. Your bill of fare is ſomething advanc'd in this latter account. Well, have I Liberty to offer Conditions — that when you are dwindl'd into a Wife, I may not be beyond Meaſure enlarg'd into a Husband?

Mill. You have free leave; propoſe your utmoſt, ſpeak and ſpare not.

Mir. I thank you. Inprimis then, I Covenant that your acquaintance be General; that you admit no ſworn Confident, or Intimate of your own Sex; No ſhe friend to skreen her affairs under your Countenance and tempt you to make tryal of a Mutual Secreſie. No Decoy-Duck to wheadle you a fop — ſcrambling to the Play in a Mask — then bring you home in a pretended fright, when you think you ſhall be found out. — And rail at me for miſſing the Play, and diſappointing the Frolick which you had to pick me up and prove my Conſtancy.

Mill. Deteſtable Inprimis! I go to the Play in a Mask!

Mir. Item, I Article, that you continue to like your own Face, as long as I ſhall. And while it paſſes Current with me, that you endeavour not to new Coin it. To which end, together with all Vizards for the day, I prohibit all Masks for the Night, made of oil'd-skins and I know not what — Hog's-bones, Hare's-gall, Pig-water, and the marrow of a roaſted Cat. In ſhort, I forbid all Commerce with the Gentlewoman in what-de-call-it-Court. Item, I ſhut my doors againſt all Bauds with Baskets, and penny-worths of Muſlin, China, Fans, Atlaſes, &c. — Item when you ſhall be Breeding. —

Mill.

Mill. Ah! Name it not.

Mir. Which may be preſum'd, with a bleſſing on our endeavours——

Mill. Odious endeavours!

Mir. I denounce againſt all ſtrait-Lacing, Squeezing for a Shape, 'till you mold my boy's head like a Sugar-loaf; and inſtead of a Man-child, make me the Father to a Crooked-billet. Laſtly to the Dominion of the Tea-Table, I ſubmit. ——But with proviſo, that you exceed not in your province; but reſtrain your ſelf to Native and Simple Tea-Table drinks, as Tea, Chocolate and Coffee. As likewiſe to Genuine and, Authoriz'd Tea-Table talk, ——ſuch as mending of Faſhions ſpoiling Reputations, railing at abſent Friends, and ſo forth ——but that on no account you encroach upon the mens prerogative, and preſume to drink healths, or toſte fellows; for prevention of which; I baniſh all Foreign Forces, all Auxiliaries to the Tea-Table, as Orange-Brandy, all Anniſeed, Cinamon, Citron and Barbado's-Waters, together with Ratifia and the moſt noble Spirit of Clary,——but for Couſlip-Wine, Poppy-Water and all Dormitives, thoſe I allow,—— theſe proviſo's admitted, in other things I may prove a tractable and complying Husband.

Mill. O horrid proviſo's! filthy ſtrong Waters! I toſte fellows, Odious Men! I hate your Odious proviſo's.

Mir. Then wee're agreed. Shall I kiſs your hand upon the Contract? and here comes one to be a witneſs to the Sealing of the Deed.

Enter Mrs. Fainall.

Mill. Fainall, what ſhall I do? ſhall I have him? I think I muſt have him.

Mrs. Fain. Ay, ay, take him, take him, what ſhou'd you do?

Mill. Well then ——I'll take my death I'm in a horrid fright——Fainall, I ſhall never ſay it——well——I think—— I'll endure you.

Mrs. Fain. Fy, fy, have him, have him, and tell him ſo in plain terms: For I am ſure you have a mind to him.

Mill. Are you? I think I have——and the horrid Man looks as if he thought ſo too——Well, you ridiculous thing you, I'll have you,—— I won't be kiſs'd, nor I won't be thank'd——here kiſs my hand tho'——ſo hold your tongue now, and don't ſay a word.

Mrs. Fain. Mirabell, there's a Neceſſity for your obedience;——You have neither time to talk nor ſtay. My Mother is coming; and in my Conſcience if ſhe ſhould ſee you, wou'd fall into fits, and maybe not recover time enough to return to Sir Rowland, who as Foible tells me is in a fair way to ſucceed. Therefore ſpare your Extacies for another occaſion, and ſlip down the back-ſtairs, where Foible waits to conſult you.

Mill. Ay, go, go. In the mean time I ſuppoſe you have ſaid ſomething to pleaſe me.

Mir. I am all Obedience. [Exit Mirab.

Mrs. Fain. Yonder Sir Wilfull's Drunk; and ſo noiſy that my Mother has been forc'd to leave Sir Rowland to appeaſe him; But he anſwers her only with Singing and Drinking——what they have done by this time I know not. But Petulant and he were upon quarrelling as I came by.

Mill. Well, If Mirabell ſhou'd not make a good Husband, I am a loſt thing;—— for I find I love him violently.

Mrs. Fain. So it ſeems, when you mind not what's ſaid to you,——If you doubt him, you had beſt take up with Sir Wilfull.

Mill. How can you name that ſuper-annuated Lubber, foh!

Enter Witwou'd from drinking.

Mrs. Fain. So, Is the fray made up, that you have left 'em?

Wit.

Wit. Left 'em? I cou'd ſtay no longer—I have laugh'd like ten Chriſtnings—I am tipſy with laughing—If I had ſtaid any longer I ſhould have burſt,—I muſt have been let out and piec'd in the ſides like an unſiz'd Camlet,—Yes, yes the fray is compos'd; my Lady came in like a Noli proſequi and ſtop't their proceedings.

Mill. What was the diſpute?

Wit. That's the Jeſt, there was no diſpute, they cou'd neither of 'em ſpeak for rage; And ſo fell a ſputt'ring at one another like two roaſting Apples.

Enter Petulant Drunk.

Now Petulant, all's over, all's well; Gad my head begins to whim it about—Why doſt thou not ſpeak? thou art both as drunk and as mute as a Fiſh.

Pet. Look you Mrs. Millamant,—If you can love me dear Nymph—ſay it—and that's the Concluſion—paſs on, or paſs off,—that's all.

Wit. Thou haſt utter'd Volumes, Folio's, in leſs than Decimo Sexto, my Dear Lacedemonian, Sirrah Petulant, thou art an Epitomizer of words.

Pet. Witwou'd—You are an anihilator of ſenſe.

Wit. Thou art a retailer of Phraſes; and doſt deal in Remnants of Remnants, like a maker of Pincuſhions—thou art in truth (Metaphorically ſpeaking) A ſpeaker of ſhorthand.

Pet. Thou art (without a figure) Juſt one half of an Aſs; and Baldwin yonder, thy half Brother is the reſt—A gemini of Aſſes ſplit, would make juſt four of you.

Wit. Thou dodſt bite my dear Muſtard-ſeed; kiſs me for that.

Pet. Stand off—I'll kiſs no more Males,—I have kiſs'd your twin yonder in a humour of reconciliation, till he (hiccup) riſes upon my ſtomack like a Radiſh.

Mill. Eh! filthy creature—what was the quarrel?

Pet. There was no quarrel—there might have been a quarrel.

Wit.

Wit. If there had been words enow between 'em to have expreſs'd provocation; they had gone together by the Ears like a pair of Caſtanets.

Pet. You were the Quarrel.

Mill. Me!

Pet. If I have a humour to Quarrel, I can make leſs matters conclude Premiſes, —— If you are not handſom, what then? If I have a humour to prove it. — If I ſhall have my Reward, ſay ſo; if not, fight for your Face the next time your ſelf —— I'll go ſleep.

Wit. Do, rap thy ſelf up like a Wood-louſe and dream Revenge — and hear me, if thou canſt learn to write by to morrow Morning, Pen me a Challenge — I'll carry it for thee.

Pet. Carry your Miſtreſſes Monkey a Spider, —— go flea Dogs, and read Romances —— I'll go to bed to my Maid. [Exit.

Mrs. Fain. He's horridly drunk —— how came you all in this pickle? ——

Wit. A plot, a plot, to get rid of the Knight, —— your Husband's advice; but he ſneak'd off.

Enter Lady and Sir Wilfull drunk.

Lady. Out upon't, out upon't, at years of Diſcretion, and Comport your ſelf at this Rantipole rate.

Sir Wil. No Offence Aunt.

Lady. Offence? As I'm a Perſon, I'm aſham'd of you, —— Fogh! how you ſtink of Wine! Dee think my Neice will ever endure ſuch a Borachio! you'r an abſolute Borachio.

Sir Wil. Borachio!

Lady. At a time when you ſhou'd commence an Amour and put your beſt foot foremoſt ——

Sir Wil. 'Sheart, an you grutch me your Liquor, make a Bill — Give me more drink and take my Purſe.

Sings,

Sings,

Prithee fill me the Glaſs
Till it laugh in my Face,
With Ale that is Potent and Mellow;
He that Whines for a Laſs,
Is an Ignorant Aſs,
For a Bumper has not its Fellow.

but if you wou'd have me Marry my Coſen, —— ſay the Word, and I'll do't —— Wilfull will do't, that's the Word —— Wilfull will do't, that's my Creſt — my Motto I have forgot.

Lady. My Nephew's a little overtaken Coſen —— but 'tis with drinking your Health —— O' my Word you are oblig'd to him.

Sir Wil. In vino veritas Aunt, —— If I drunk your Health to day Coſen —— I am a Borachio. But if you have a mind to be Marry'd, ſay the Word, and ſend for the Piper, Wilfull will do't. If not, duſt it away, and let's have tother round —— Tony, Ods heart where's Tony —— Tony's an honeſt fellow, but he ſpits after a Bumper, and that's a Fault.

Sings,

We'll drink and we'll never ha'done Boys
Put the glaſs then around with the Sun Boys
Let Apollo's Example invite us;
For he's drunk every Night,
And that makes him ſo bright,
That he's able next Morning to light us.

the Sun's a good Pimple, an honeſt Soaker, he has a Cellar at your Antipodes. If I travel Aunt, I touch at your Antipodes —— your Antipodes are a good raſcally ſort of topſy turvy Fellows —— If I had a Bumper I'd ſtand upon my Head

Head and drink a Health to 'em — A Match or no Match, Coſen, with the hard Name, — Aunt, Wilfull will do't, If ſhe has her Maidenhead let her look to't, — if ſhe has not, let her keep her own Counſel in the mean time, and cry out at the nine Months end.

Mill. Your Pardon Madam, I can ſtay no longer — Sir Wilfull grows very powerful, Egh! how he ſmells! I ſhall be overcome if I ſtay.
Come, Coſen. [Ex. Mill. and Mrs. Fain.

Lady. Smells! he would poiſon a Tallow-Chandler and his Family. Beaſtly Creature, I know not what to do with him — Travel quoth a; Ay travel, travel, get thee gone, get thee but far enough, to the Saracens or the Tartars, or the Turks — for thou are not fit to live in a Chriſtian Commonwealth, thou beaſtly Pagan.

Sir Wil. Turks, no; no Turks, Aunt: Your Turks are Infidels, and believe not in the Grape. Your Mahometan, your Muſſulman is a dry Stinkard — No Offence, Aunt. My Map ſays that your Turk is not ſo honeſt a Man as your Chriſtian — I cannot find by the Map that your Mufti is Orthodox — Whereby it is a plain Caſe, that Orthodox is a hard Word, Aunt, and (hiccup) Greek for Claret.

Sings.

To drink is a Chriſtian Diverſion,
Unknown to the Turk and the Perſian:
Let Mahometan Fools
Live by Heatheniſh Rules,
And be damn'd over Tea-Cups and Coffee.
But let Britiſh Lads ſing,
Crown a Health to the King,
And a Fig for your Sultan and Sophy.

Ah Tony!

Enter Foible, and whispers Lady.

Lady. Sir Rowland impatient? Good lack! what shall I do with this beastly Tumbril? —— Go lie down and sleep, you Sot —— Or as I'm a person, I'll have you bastinado'd with Broom-sticks. Call up the Wenches.

[Ex. Foib.

Sir Wil. Ahey! Wenches, where are the Wenches?

Lady. Dear Cosen Witwou'd, get him away, and you will bind me to you inviolably. I have an Affair of moment that invades me with some precipitation --- You will oblige me to all Futurity.

Wit. Come Knight --- Pox on him. I don't know what to say to him ---- will you go to a Cock-match?

Sir. Wil. With a Wench, Tony? Is she a shake-bag Sirrah? let me bite your Cheek for that.

Wit. Horrible! He has a breath like a Bagpipe—ay, ay, come will you March my Salopian?

Sir Wil. Lead on little Tony—I'll follow thee my Anthony, My Tantony, Sirrah thou sha't be my Tantony; and I'll be thy Pig.

---And a fig for your Sultan and Sophy.

[Exit Singing with Witwou'd.

Lady. This will never do. It will never make a Match. ——At least before he has been abroad.

Enter Waitwell, disguis'd as for Sir Rowland.

Dear Sir Rowland, I am Confounded with Confusion at the Retrospection of my own rudeness,—I have more pardons to ask than the Pope distributes in the Year of Jubilee. But I hope where there is likely to be so near an alliance, —— We may unbend the severity of Decorum—and dispence with a little Ceremony.

Wait. My Impatience Madam, is the effect of my transport;---and till I have the possession of your adoreable Perſon, I am tantaliz'd on a rack; And do but hang Madam, on the tenter of Expectation.

Lady, You have Exceſs of gallantry Sir Rowland; and preſs things to a Concluſion, with a moſt prevailing Vehemence.——But a day or two for decency of Marriage---

Wait. For decency of Funeral, Madam. The delay will break my heart ——or if that ſhould fail. I ſhall be Poyſon'd. My Nephew will get an inkling of my Deſigns and Poiſon me,——and I wou'd willingly ſtarve him before I die——I wou'd gladly go out of the World with that Satisfaction.——That wou'd be ſome Comfort to me, If I cou'd but live ſo long as to be reveng'd on that Unnatural Viper.

Lady, Is he ſo Unnatural ſay you? truely I wou'd Contribute much both to the ſaving of your Life; and the accompliſhment of your revenge——Not that I reſpect my ſelf; tho' he has been a perfidious wretch to me.

Wait. Perfidious to you!

Lady. O Sir Rowland, the hours that he has dy'd away at my Feet, the Tears that he has ſhed, the Oaths that he has ſworn, the Palpitations that he has felt, the Trances, and the Tremblings, the Ardors and the Ecſtacies, the Kneelings and the Riſeings, the Heart-heavings, and the hand-Gripings, the Pangs and the Pathetick Regards of his proteſting Eyes! Oh no memory can Regiſter.

Wait. What, my Rival! is the Rebell my Rival? a'dies.

Lady, No, don't kill him at once Sir Rowland, ſtarve him gradually inch by inch.

Wait. I'll do't. In three weeks he ſhall be bare-foot; in a month out at knees with begging an Alms,——he ſhall ſtarve upward and upward, till he has nothing living but his head, and then go out in a ſtink like a Candle's end upon a Save-all.

Lady, Well Sir Rowland, you have the way,——You are no Novice in the Labyrinth of Love——You have the Clue ——But as I am a perſon, Sir Rowland, You muſt not attribute my yielding to any ſiniſter appetite, or Indigeſtion of Widdowdow-hood; Nor Impute my Complacency, to any Lethargy of Continence —— I hope you do not think me prone to any iteration of Nuptials.——

Wait. Far be it from me——

Lady. If you do, I proteſt I muſt recede——or think that I have made a proſtitution of decorums, but in the Vehemence of Compaſſion, and to ſave the life of a Perſon of ſo much Importance——

Wait. I eſteem it ſo——

Lady. Or elſe you wrong my Condeſcenſion——

Wait. I do not, I do not——

Lady. Indeed you do.

Wait. I do not, fair ſhrine of Vertue.

Lady. If you think the leaſt ſcruple of Carnality was an Ingredient——

Wait. Dear Madam, no. You are all Camphire and Frankincenſe, all Chaſtity and Odour.

Lady. Or that——

Enter Foible.

Foib. Madam, the Dancers are ready, and there's one with a Letter, who muſt deliver it into your own hands.

Lady. Sir Rowland, will you give me leave? think favourably, Judge Candidly and conclude you have found a Perſon who wou'd ſuffer racks in honour's cauſe, dear Sir Rowland, and will wait on you Inceſſantly.

[Exit.

Wait. Fie, fie! --- What a Slavery have I undergone; Spouſe, haſt thou any Cordial——I want Spirits.

Foib. What a waſhy Rogue art thou, to pant thus for a quarter of an hours lying and ſwearing to a fine Lady?

Wait. O, ſhe is the Antidote to deſire. Spouſe, thou will't fare the worſe for't——I ſhall have no appetite to interation of Nuptials——this eight and fourty Hours——by this hand I'd rather be a Chair-man in the Dog-days——than Act Sir Rowland, till this time to morrow.

Enter Lady with a Letter.

Lady. Call in the Dancers;——Sir Rowland, we'll ſit if you pleaſe, and ſee the Entertainment.

Dance.

Now with your permiſſion Sir Rowland I will peruſe my Letter——I wou'd open it in your preſence, becauſe I wou'd not make you Uneaſie. If it ſhou'd make you Uneaſie I wou'd burn it——ſpeak if it do's——but you may ſee by the Superſcription it is like a Woman's hand.

Foib. By Heaven! Mrs. Marwood's, I know it,——my heart akes——get it from her——[to him.]

Wait. A Woman's hand? No Madam, that's no Woman's hand I ſee that already. That's ſome body whoſe throat muſt be cut.

Lady. Nay Sir Rowland, ſince you give me a proof of your Paſſion by your Jealouſie, I promiſe you I'll make you a return, by a frank Communication—— You ſhall ſee it——wee'll open it together—— look you here.

Reads——Madam, tho' unknown to you [Look you there 'tis from no body that I know]---I have that honour for your Character, that I think my ſelf oblig'd to let you know you are abus'd. He who pretends to be Sir Rowland is a cheat and a Raſcal.——

Oh Heavens! what's this?

Foib. Unfortunate, all's ruin'd.

Wait. How, how, Let me ſee, let me ſee——reading A Raſcal and diſguis'd and ſubborn'd for that impoſture,---O villany O villany!——by the Contrivance of——

Lady. I ſhall faint, I ſhall die, I ſhall die, oh!

Foib. Say 'tis your Nephew's hand.——quickly, his plot, ſwear, ſwear it.——[to him.

Wait.

Wait. Here's a Villain! Madam, don't you perceive it, don't you ſee it?

Lady. Too well, too well. I have ſeen too much.

Wait. I told you at firſt I knew the hand——A Womans hand? the Raſcal writes a ſort of a large hand; your Roman hand——I ſaw there was a throat to be cut preſently. If he were my Son as he is my Nephew I'd Piſtoll him——

Foib. O Treachery! But are you ſure Sir Rowland, it is his writing?

Wait. Sure? am I here? do I live? do I love this Pearl of India? I have twenty Letters in my Pocket from him, in the ſame Character.

Lady. How!

Foib. O what luck it is Sir Rowland, that you were preſent at this Juncture! this was the buſineſs that brought Mr. Mirabell diſguis'd to Madam Millamant this Afternoon. I thought ſomething was contriving, when he ſtole by me and would have hid his face.

Lady. How, how!--I heard the Villain was in the houſe indeed, and now I remember, my Niece went away abruptly, when Sir Wilfull was to have made his addreſſes.

Foib. Then, then Madam, Mr. Mirabell waited for her in her Chamber, but I wou'd not tell your Lady-ſhip to diſcompoſe you when you were to receive Sir Rowland.

Wait. Enough, his date is ſhort.

Foib. No, good Sir Rowland, don't incurr the Law.

Wait. Law? I care not for Law. I can but die, and 'tis in a good cauſe——my Lady ſhall be ſatisfied of my Truth nd Innocence, tho' it coſt me my life.

Lady. No, dear Sir Rowland, don't fight, if you ſhou'd be kill'd I muſt never ſhew my face or hang'd,——O Conſider my Reputation Sir Rowland——No you ſhan't fight,——I'll go in and Examine my Niece; I'll make her Confeſs. I conjure you Sir Rowland by all your love not to fight.

Wait.

Wait. I am Charm'd Madam, I obey. But ſome proof you muſt let me give you; --I'll go for a black box, which Contains the Writings of my whole Eſtate, and deliver that into your hands.

Lady. Ay dear Sir Rowland, that will be ſome Comfort; bring the Black-box.

Wait. And may I preſume to bring a Contract to be ſign'd this Night? May I hope ſo farr?

Lady. Bring what you will; but come alive, pray come alive. O this is a happy diſcovery.

Wait. Dead or Alive I'll come——and married we will be in ſpight of treachery; Ay and get an Heir that ſhall defeat the laſt remaining glimpſe of hope in my abandon'd Nephew. Come my Buxom Widdow.

Ere long you ſhall Subſtantial proof receive
That I'm an Arrant Knight——

Foib. Or arrant Knave. [Exeunt

ACT

ACT V. SCENE I.

[Scene Continues.]

Lady Wishfort and Foible.

Lady. Out of my house, out of my house, thou Viper, thou Serpent, that I have foster'd, thou bosome traytress, that I rais'd from nothing--begon,begon,begon,go,go,--- that I took from Washing of old Gause and Weaving of dead Hair, with a bleak blew Nose, over a Chafeing-dish of starv'd Embers and Dining behind a Traver's Rag, in a shop no bigger than a Bird-cage,——go, go, starve again, do, do.

Foib. Dear Madam, I'll beg pardon on my knees.

Lady. Away, out, out, go set up for your self again—— do, drive a Trade, do,with your three penny worth of small Ware, flaunting upon a Packthread, under a Brandy-sellers Bulk, or against a dead Wall by a Ballad-monger. Go hang out an old Frisoneer-gorget, with a yard of Yellow Colberteen again; do; an old gnaw'd Mask, two rowes of Pins and a Childs Fiddle; A Glass Necklace with the Beads broken, and a Quilted Night-cap with one Ear. Go, go, drive a trade,——these were your Commodities you treacherous Trull, this was your Merchandize you dealt in, when I took you into my house, plac'd you next my self And made you Governante of my whole Family. You have forgot this, have you? Now you have feather'd your Nest.

Foib. No, no, dear Madam. Do but hear me, have but a Moment's patience--- I'll Confess all. Mr. Mirabell seduc'd me; I am not the first that he has wheadl'd with his dissembling Tongue; Your Lady-ship's own Wisdom has been deluded.

deluded by him, then how shou'd I a poor Ignorant, defend my self? O Madam, If you knew but what he promis'd me; and how he assur'd me your Ladyship shou'd come to no damage ——— Or else the Wealth of the Indies shou'd not have brib'd me to conspire against so Good, so Sweet, so kind a Lady as you have been to me.

Lady. No damage? What to Betray me, to Marry me to a Cast-serving-man; to make me a receptacle, an Hospital for a decay'd Pimp? No damage? O thou frontless Impudence, more than a big-Belly'd Actress.

Foib. Pray do but here me Madam, he cou'd not marry your Lady-ship, Madam———No indeed his Marriage was to have been void in Law; for he was married to me first, to secure your Lady-ship. He cou'd not have bedded your Lady-ship: for if he had Consummated with your Lady-ship; he must have run the risque of the Law, and been put upon his Clergy——Yes indeed, I enquir'd of the Law in that case before I wou'd meddle or make.

Lady. What, then I have been your Property, have I? I have been convenient to you it seems,——while you were Catering for Mirabell; I have been broaker for you? What, have you made a passive Bawd of me?———this Exceeds all precedent; I am brought to fine uses, to become a botcher of second hand Marriages, between Abigails and Andrews! I'll couple you, Yes, I'll baste you together, you and your Philander. I'll Dukes-Place you, as I'm a Person. Your Turtle is in Custody already; You shall Coo in the same Cage, if there be Constable or warrant in the Parish.

[Exit

Foib. O that ever I was Born, O that I was ever Married, ———a Bride, ay I shall be a Bridewell-Bride. Oh!

Enter Mrs. Fainall.

Mrs. Fain. Poor Foible, what's the matter?

Foib. O Madam, my Lady's gone for a Constable; I shall be had to a Justice, and put to Bridewell to beat Hemp, poor Waitwell's gone to prison already.

Mrs. Fain.

Mrs. Fain. Have a good heart Foible, Mirabell's gone to give ſecurity for him, this is all Marwood's and my Husband's doing.

Foib. Yes, yes; I know it Madam; ſhe was in my Lady's Cloſet, and over-heard all that you ſaid to me before Dinner. She ſent the Letter to my Lady, and that miſſing Effect, Mr. Fainall laid this Plot to arreſt Waitwell, when he pretended to go for the Papers; and in the mean time Mrs. Marwood declar'd all to my Lady.

Mrs. Fain. Was there no mention made of me in the Letter?——My Mother do's not ſuſpect my being in the Confederacy? I fancy Marwood has not told her, tho' ſhe has told my husband.

Foib. Yes Madam; but my Lady did not ſee that part; We ſtiff'd the Letter before ſhe read ſo far. Has that miſchievous Devil told Mr. Fainall of your Ladyſhip then?

Mrs. Fain. Ay, all's out, My affair with Mirabell, every thing diſcover'd. This is the laſt day of our liveing together, that's my Comfort.

Foib. Indeed Madam, and ſo 'tis a Comfort if you knew all,——he has been even with your Ladyſhip; which I cou'd have told you long enough ſince, but I love to keep Peace and Quietneſs by my good will: I had rather bring friends together, than ſet 'em at diſtance. But Mrs. Marwood and He are nearer related than ever their Parents thought for.

Mrs. Fain. Say'ſt thou ſo Foible? Canſt thou prove this?

Foib. I can take my Oath of it Madam, ſo can Mrs. Mincing; we have had many a fair word from Madam Marwood, to conceal ſomething that paſs'd in our Chamber one Evening when you were at Hide-Park;——And we were thought to have gone a Walking: But we went up unawares, tho' we were ſworn to ſecreſie too; Madam Marwood took a Book and ſwore us upon it: But it was but a Book of Verſes and Poems,——So as long as it was not a Bible-Oath, we may break it with a ſafe Conſcience.

Mrs. Fain. This discovery is the most opportune thing I cou'd wish. Now Mincing?

Enter Mincing.

Minc. My Lady wou'd speak with Mrs. Foible, Mem. Mr. Mirabell is with her, he has set your Spouse at liberty Mrs. Foible; and wou'd have you hide your self in my Lady's Closet, till my old Lady's anger is abated. O, my old Lady is in a perilous passion, at something Mr. Fainall has said, He swears, and my old Lady cry's. There's a fearful Hurricane I vow. He says Mem; how that he'll have my Lady's Fortune made over to him, or he'll be divorc'd.

Mrs. Fain. Do's your Lady and Mirabell know that?

Minc. Yes Mem, they have sent me to see if Sir Wilfull be sober, and to bring him to them. My Lady is resolv'd to have him I think, rather than loose such a vast Summ as six thousand Pound. O, come Mrs. Foible, I hear my old Lady.

Mrs. Fain. Foible, you must tell Mincing, that she must prepare to vouch when I call her.

Foib. Yes, yes Madam.

Minc. O yes Mem, I'll vouch any thing for your Ladyship's service, be what it will. [Exeunt Minc. and Foib.

Enter Lady and Marwood.

Lady. O my dear Friend, how can I Enumerate the benefits that I have receiv'd from your goodness? To you I owe the timely discovery of the false vows of Mirabell; To you the Detection of the Impostor Sir Rowland. And now you are become an Intercessor with my Son in-Law, to save the Honour of my House, and Compound for the frailty's of my Daughter. Well Friend, You are enough to reconcile me to the bad World, or else I wou'd retire to Desarts and Solitudes; and feed harmless Sheep by Groves and Purling ling Streams. Dear Marwood, let us leave the World, and retire by our ſelves and be Sheperdreſſes.

Mrs. Mar. Let us firſt diſpatch the affair in hand Madam, we ſhall have leiſure to think of Retirement afterwards. Here is one who is concern'd in the treaty.

Lady. O Daughter, Daughter, Is it poſſible thou ſhoud'ſt be my Child, Bone of my Bone, and Fleſh of my Fleſh, and as I may ſay, another Me, and yet tranſgreſs the moſt minute Particle of ſevere Vertue? Is it poſſible you ſhould lean aſide to Iniquity who have been Caſt in the direct Mold of Vertue? I have not only been a Mold but a Pattern for you, and a Model for you, after you were brought into the World.

Mrs. Fain. I don't underſtand your Ladyſhip.

Lady. Not underſtand? Why have you not been Naught? Have you not been Sophiſticated? Not underſtand? Here I am ruin'd to Compound for your Caprices and your Cuckoldomes. I muſt pawn my Plate, and my Jewells and ruine my Neice, and all little enough——

Mrs. Fain. I am wrong'd and abus'd, and ſo are you. 'Tis a falſe accuſation, as falſe as Hell, as falſe as your Friend there, ay or your Friend's Friend, my falſe Husband.

Mrs. Mar. My Friend, Mrs. Fainal? Your Husband my Friend, what do you mean?

Mrs. Fain. I know what I mean Madam, and ſo do you; and ſo ſhall the World at a time Convenient.

Mrs. Mar. I am ſorry to ſee you ſo paſſionate, Madam. More Temper wou'd look more like Innocence. But I have done. I am ſorry my Zeal to ſerve your Ladyſhip and Family, ſhou'd admit of Miſconſtruction, or make me liable to affronts. You will pardon me, Madam, If I meddle no more with an affair, in which I am not Perſonally concern'd.

Lady. O dear Friend; I am ſo aſham'd that you ſhould meet with ſuch returns;——you ought to ask Pardon on your Knees, Ungratefull Creature; ſhe deſerves more from you, than all your life can accompliſh—O don't leave me deſtitute in this Perplexity;—No, ſtick to me my good Genius.

Mrs. Fain. I tell you Madam you're abus'd—ſtick to you? ay, like a Leach, to ſuck your beſt Blood—ſhe'll drop off when ſhe's full. Madam you ſha'not pawn a Bodkin, nor part with a Braſs Counter in Compoſition for me. I defie 'em all. Let 'em prove their aſperſions: I know my own Innocence, and dare ſtand by a tryall.

[Exit.

Lady. Why, If ſhe ſhou'd be Innocent, If ſhe ſhou'd be wrong'd after all, ha? I don't know what to think,—and I promiſe you, her Education has been unexceptionable—I may ſay it; for I chiefly made it my own Care to Initiate her very Infancy in the Rudiments of Vertue, and to Impreſs upon her tender Years, a Young Odium and Averſion to the very ſight of Men,—ay Friend, ſhe wou'd ha' ſhriek'd, If ſhe had but ſeen a Man, till ſhe was in her Teens. As I'm a Perſon 'tis true—She was never ſuffer'd to play with a Male-Child, tho' but in Coats; Nay her very Babies were of the Feminine Gender,—O, ſhe never look'd a Man in the Face but her own Father, or the Chaplain, and him we made a ſhift to put upon her for a Woman, by the help of his long Garments, and his Sleek-face; till ſhe was going in her fifteen.

Mrs. Mar. Twas much ſhe ſhou'd be deceiv'd ſo long.

Lady. I warrant you, or ſhe wou'd never have born to have been Catechis'd by him; and have heard his long lectures, againſt Singing and Dancing, and ſuch Debaucheries; and going to filthy Plays; and Profane Muſick-meetings, where the Leud Trebles ſqueek nothing but Bawdy, and the Baſes roar Blaſphemy. O, ſhe wou'd have ſwooned at the ſight or name of an obſcene Play-Book—and can I think after all this, that my Daughter can be Naught? What, a Whore? And thought it excommunication to ſet her foot within within the door of a Play-house. O my dear friend, I can't believe it, No, no; as she says, let him prove it, let him prove it.

Mrs. Mar. Prove it Madam? What, and have your name prostituted in a publick Court; Yours and your Daughters reputation worry'd at the Barr by a pack of Bawling Lawyers? To be usher'd in with an O Yez of Scandal; and have your Case open'd by an old fumbling Leacher in a Quoif like a Man Midwife to bring your Daughter's Infamy to light, to be a Theme for legal Punsters, and Quiblers by the Statute; and become a Jest, against a Rule of Court, where there is no precedent for a Jest in any record; not even in Dooms-day-Book: to discompose the gravity of the Bench, and provoke Naughty Interrogatories, in more Naughty Law Latin; while the good Judge tickl'd with the proceeding, Simpers under a Grey beard, and fidges off and on his Cushion as if he had swallow'd Cantharides, or sat upon Cow-Itch.

Lady. O, 'tis very hard!

Mrs. Mar. And then to have my Young Revellers of the Temple, take Notes like Prentices at a Conventicle; and after, talk it all over again in Commons, or before Drawers in an Eating-house.

Lady. Worse and Worse.

Mrs. Mar. Nay this is nothing; if it wou'd end here, 'twere well. But it must after this be consign'd by the Short-hand Writers to the publick Press; and from thence be transferr'd to the hands, nay into the Throats and Lungs of Hawkers, with Voices more Licentious than the loud Flounder-man's or the Woman that crys Grey-pease; and this you must hear till you are stunn'd; Nay you must hear nothing else for some days.

Lady. O, 'tis Insupportable. No, no, dear Friend make it up, make it up; ay, ay, I'll Compound. I'll give up all, my self and my all, my Neice and her all,—any thing, every thing for Composition.

Mrs. Mar.

Mrs. Mar. Nay Madam, I adviſe nothing, I only lay before you as a Friend the Inconveniencies which perhaps you have Overſeen. Here comes Mr. Fainall. If he will be ſatisfi'd to huddle up all in Silence, I ſhall be glad. You muſt think I would rather Congratulate, then Condole with you.

Enter Fainall.

Lady. Ay, ay, I do not doubt it, dear Marwood: No, no, I do not doubt it.

Fain. Well Madam; I have ſuffer'd my ſelf to be overcome by the Importunity of this Lady your Friend; and am content you ſhall enjoy your own proper Eſtate during Life; on condition you oblige your ſelf never to Marry, under ſuch penalty as I think convenient.

Lady. Never to Marry?

Fain. No more Sir Rowlands, —— the next Impoſture may not be ſo timely detected.

Mrs. Mar, That condition I dare anſwer, my Lady will conſent to, without difficulty; ſhe has already, but too much experienc'd the perfidiouſneſs of Men. Beſides Madam, when we retire to our paſtoral Solitude we ſhall bid adieu to all other Thoughts.

Lady. Aye that's true; but in Caſe of Neceſſity; as of Health, or ſome ſuch Emergency ——.

Fain. O, if you are preſcrib'd Marriage, you ſhall be conſider'd; I will only reſerve to my ſelf the Power to chuſe for you. If your Phyſick be wholſome, it matters not who is your Apothecary. Next, my Wife ſhall ſettle on me the remainder of her Fortune, not made over already; And for her Maintenance depend entirely on my Diſcretion.

Lady. This is moſt inhumanly Savage; exceeding the Barbarity of a Muſcovite Husband.

Fain. I learn'd it from his Czariſh Majeſtie's Retinue, in a Winter Evenings Conference over Brandy and Pepper, amongſt mongſt other ſecrets of Matrimony and Policy, as they are at preſent Practis'd in the Northern Hemiſphere. But this muſt be agreed unto, and that poſitively. Laſtly, I will be endow'd in right of my Wife, with that ſix thouſand Pound, which is the Moiety of Mrs. Millamant's Fortune in your Poſſeſſion: And which ſhe has forfeited (as will appear by the laſt Will and Teſtament of your deceas'd Husband Sir Jonathan Wiſhfort) by her diſobedience in Contracting her ſelf againſt your Conſent or Knowledge; and by refuſing the offer'd Match with Sir Willful Witwou'd, which you like a careful Aunt had provided for her.

Lady. My Nephew was non Compos; and cou'd not make his Addreſſes.

Fain. I come to make demands, —— I'll hear no objections.

Lady. You will grant me time to Conſider.

Fain, Yes, while the Inſtrument is drawing, to which you muſt ſet your Hand till more ſufficient Deeds can be perfected, which I will take care ſhall be done with all poſſible ſpeed. In the mean while, I will go for the ſaid Inſtrument, and till my return, you may Ballance this Matter in your own Diſcretion.

[Exit. Fain.

Lady. This Inſolence is beyond all Precedent, all Parallel, muſt I be ſubject to this mercileſs Villain?

Mrs. Mar. 'Tis ſevere indeed Madam, that you ſhou'd ſmart for your Daughters wantonneſs.

Lady. 'Twas againſt my Conſent that ſhe Married this Barbarian, But ſhe wou'd have him, tho' her Year was not out. —— Ah! her firſt Husband my Son Languiſh, would not have carry'd it thus. Well, that was my Choice, this is her's; ſhe is match'd now with a Witneſs —— I ſhall be mad, Dear Friend, is there no Comfort for me? Muſt I live to be confiſcated at this Rebel-rate? —— Here come two more of my Egyptian Plagues too.

Enter

Enter Millamant and Sir. Willfull.

Sir. Wil. Aunt, your Servant.

Lady. Out Caterpillar, Call not me Aunt, I know thee not.

Sir. Wil. I confeſs I have been a little in diſguiſe as they ſay,---S'heart! and I'm ſorry for't. What wou'd you have? I hope I committed no Offence Aunt——and if I did I am willing to make ſatisfaction; and what can a man ſay fairer? If I have broke any thing, I'll pay for't, an it coſt a Pound. And ſo let that content for what's paſt, and make no more words. For what's to come to pleaſure you I'm willing to marry my Coſen. So pray lets all be Friends, ſhe and I are agreed upon the matter, before a Witneſs.

Lady. How's this dear Niece? Have I any comfort? Can this be true?

Mill. I am content to be a Sacrifice to your repoſe Madam; and to Convince you that I had no hand in the Plot, as you were miſinform'd; I have laid my commands on Mirabell to come in Perſon, and be a Witneſs that I give my hand to this flower of Knight-hood; and for the Contract that paſt between Mirabell and me, I have oblig'd him to make a Reſignation of it, in your Lady-ſhip's preſence;——He is without and waits your leave for admittance.

Lady. Well, I'll ſwear I am ſomething reviv'd at this Teſtimony of your Obedience; but I cannot admit that Traytor,——I fear I cannot fortifie my ſelf to ſupport his appearance. He is as terrible to me as a Gorgon; if I ſee him, I fear I ſhall turn to Stone, petrifie Inceſſantly.

Mill. If you diſoblige him he may reſent your refuſal and inſiſt upon the contract ſtill. Then 'tis the laſt time he will be offenſive to you.

Lady

Lady. Are you ſure it will be the laſt time? — if I were ſure of that — ſhall I never ſee him again?

Mill. Sir Willful, you and he are to Travel together, are you not?

Sir Will. 'Sheart the Gentleman's a civil Gentleman, Aunt, let him come in; why we are ſworn Brothers and fellow Travellers. — We are to be Pylades and Oreſtes, he and I — He is to be my Interpreter in foreign Parts. He has been Over-ſea's once already; and with proviſo that I Marry my Coſen, will croſs 'em once again, only to bear me Company, — 'Sheart, I'll call him in, — an I ſet on't once, he ſhall come in; and ſee who'll hinder him.

[Exit.

Mrs. Mar. This is precious Fooling, if it wou'd paſs, but I'll know the bottom of it.

Lady. O dear Marwood, you are not going?

Mar. Not far Madam; I'll return immediately.

[Exit.

Re-enter Sir Willful and Mirabell.

Sir Will. Look up Man, I'll ſtand by you, 'sbud an ſhe do frown, ſhe can't kill you; — beſides — Hearkee ſhe dare not frown deſperately, becauſe her face is none of her own; 'Sheart an ſhe ſhou'd her forehead wou'd wrinkle like the Coat of a Cream-cheeſe, but mum for that, fellow Traveller.

Mir. If a deep ſenſe of the many Injuries I have offer'd to ſo good a Lady, with a ſincere remorſe, and a hearty Contrition, can but obtain the leaſt glance of Compaſſion I am too Happy, — Ah Madam, there was a time — but let it be forgotten — I confeſs I have deſervedly forfeited the high Place I once held, of ſighing at your Feet; nay kill me not, by turning from me in diſdain, — I come not to plead for favour; — Nay not for Pardon, I am a Suppliant only for your pity — I am going where I never ſhall behold you more —

Sir. Wil. How, fellow Traveller!—You ſhall go by your ſelf then.

Mir. Let me be pitied firſt; and afterwards forgotten, ——I ask no more.

Sir. Wil. By'r Lady a very reaſonable requeſt; and will coſt you nothing, Aunt—Come, come, Forgive and Forget Aunt, why you muſt an you are a Chriſtian.

Mir. Conſider Madam, in reality; You cou'd not receive much prejudice; it was an Innocent device; tho' I confeſs it had a Face of guiltineſs,—it was at moſt an Artifice which Love Contriv'd——and errours which Love produces have ever been accounted Venial. At leaſt think it is Puniſhment enough, that I have loſt what in my heart I hold moſt dear, that to your cruel Indignation, I have offer'd up this Beauty, and with her my Peace and Quiet; Nay all my hopes of future Comfort.

Sir. Wil. An he do's not move me, wou'd I might never be O' the Quorum—an it were not as good a deed as to drink, to give her to him again,—I wou'd I might never take Shipping — Aunt, if you don't forgive quickly; I ſhall melt, I can tell you that. My contract went no further than a little Mouth-Glew, and that's hardly dry;—One dolefull Sigh more from my fellow Traveller and 'tis diſſolv'd.

Lady. Well Nephew, upon your account — ah, he has a falſe Inſinuating Tongue —Well Sir, I will ſtifle my juſt reſentment at my Nephew's requeſt.---I will endeavour what I can to forget,—but on proviſo that you reſign the Contract with my Neice Immediately.

Mir. It is in Writing and with Papers of Concern; but I have ſent my Servant for it, and will deliver it to you, with all acknowledgments for your tranſcendent goodneſs.

Lady. Oh, he has Witch-craft in his Eyes and Tongue;— When I did not ſee him I cou'd have brib'd a Villain to his Aſſaſſination; but his appearance rakes the Embers which have have ſo long layn ſmother'd in my Breaſt.——[apart.

Enter Fainall and Mrs. Marwood.

Fain. Your date of deliberation Madam, is expir'd. Here is the Inſtrument, are you prepar'd to ſign?

Lady. If I were prepar'd; I am not Impowr'd. My Neice exerts a lawfull claim, having Match'd her ſelf by my direction to Sir Wilfull.

Fain. That ſham is too groſs to paſs on me,——tho 'tis Impos'd on you, Madam.

Mill. Sir, I have given my conſent.

Mir. And Sir, I have reſign'd my pretenſions.

Sir. Wil. And Sir, I aſſert my right; and will maintain it in defiance of you Sir, and of your Inſtrument. S'heart an you talk of an Inſtrument Sir, I have an old Fox by my Thigh ſhall hack your Inſtrument of Ram Vellam to ſhreds, Sir. It ſhall not be ſufficient for a Mittimus or a Taylor's meaſure; therefore withdraw your Inſtrument Sir, or by'r Lady I ſhall draw mine.

Lady. Hold Nephew, hold.

Mill. Good Sir, Wilfull reſpite your valour.

Fain. Indeed? are you provided of a Guard, with your ſingle Beef-eater there? but I'm prepar'd for you; and Inſiſt upon my firſt propoſal. You ſhall ſubmit your own Eſtate to my management, And abſolutely make over my Wife's to my ſole uſe; As purſuant to the Purport and Tenor of this other Covenant,—I ſuppoſe Madam, your Conſent is not requiſite in this Caſe; nor Mr. Mirabell, your reſignation; nor Sir. Wilfull, your right——You may draw your Fox if you pleaſe Sir, and make a Bear-Garden flouriſh ſomewhere elſe; For here it will not avail. This my Lady Wiſhfor't muſt be ſubſcrib'd, or your Darling Daughter's turn'd a drift, like a Leaky hulk to Sink or Swim, as ſhe and the Current of this Lewd Town can agree.

Lady. Is there no means, no Remedy, to ſtop my ruine? Ungrateful Wretch! doſt thou not owe thy being, thy ſubſiſtance to my Daughter's Fortune?

Fain. I'll anſwer you when I have the reſt of it in my poſſeſſion.

Mir. But that you wou'd not accept of a Remedy from my hands——I own I have not deſerv'd you ſhou'd owe any Obligation to me; or elſe perhaps I cou'd adviſe.——

Lady. O what? what? to ſave me and my Child from Ruine, from Want, I'll forgive all that's paſt; Nay I'll conſent to any thing to come, to be deliver'd from this Tyranny.

Mir. Ay Madam; but that is too late, my reward is intercepted. You have diſpos'd of her, who only cou'd have made me a Compenſation for all my Services;——But be it as it may. I am reſolv'd I'll ſerve you, you ſhall not be wrong'd in this Savage manner.

Lady. How! dear Mr. Mirabell, can you be ſo generous at laſt! But it is not poſſible. Hearkee. I'll break my Nephews Match, you ſhall have my Niece yet, and all her fortune; if you can but ſave me from this imminent danger.

Mir. Will you? I take you at you word. I ask no more. I muſt have leave for two Criminals to appear.

Lady. Ay, ay, any Body, any body.

Mir. Foible is one and a Penitent.

Enter Mrs. Fainall, Foible, and Mincing.

Mrs. Mar. O my ſhame! Theſe Corrupt things are bought and brought hither to expoſe me——[to Fain.] } Mirab and Lady go to Mrs. Fain. and Foib.

Fain. If it muſt all come out, why let 'em know it, 'tis but the way of the World. That ſhall not urge me to relinquiſh or abate one tittle of my Terms, no, I will inſiſt the more.

Foib. Yes indeed Madam; I'll take my Bible-oath of it.

Minc. And ſo will I, Mem.

Lady.

Lady. O Marwood, Marwood art thou falſe? my friend deceive me? haſt thou been a wicked accomplice with that profligate man?

Mrs. Mar. Have you ſo much Ingratitude and Injuſtice, to give credit againſt your Friend, to the Aſperſions of two ſuch Mercenary Truls?

Minc. Mercenary, Mem? I ſcorn your words. 'Tis true we found you and Mr. Fainall in the Blew garret, by the ſame token, you ſwore us to Secreſie upon Meſſalinas's Poems, Mercenary? No, if we wou'd have been Mercenary, we ſhou'd have held our Tongues; You wou'd have brib'd us ſufficiently.

Fain. Go, you are an Inſignificant thing,——Well, what are you the better for this? Is this Mr. Mirabell's Expedient? I'll be put off no longer——You thing that was a Wife, ſhall ſmart for this. I will not leave thee wherewithall to hide thy Shame; Your Body ſhall be Naked as your Reputation.

Mrs. Fain. I deſpiſe you and defie your Malice——You have aſpers'd me wrongfully——I have prov'd your falſehood——Go you and your treacherous——I will not name it, but ſtarve together---periſh.

Fain. Not while you are worth a Groat, indeed my dear. Madam, I'll be fool'd no longer.

Lady. Ah Mr. Mirabell, this is ſmall comfort, the detection of this affair.

Mir. O in good time——Your leave for the other Offender and Penitent to appear, Madam.

Enter Waitwell with a Box of Writings.

Lady. O Sir Rowland——well Raſcal.

Wait. What your Ladyſhip pleaſes.——I have brought the Black box at laſt, Madam.

Mir. Give it me. Madam, you remember your promiſe.

Lady. I, dear Sir!

Mir.

Mir. Where are the Gentlemen?

Wait. At hand Sir, rubbing their Eyes,——Juſt riſen from Sleep.

Fain. S'death what's this to me? I'll not wait your private concerns.

Enter Petulant and Witwoud.

Pet. How now? what's the matter? who's hand's out?

Wit. Hey day! what are you all got together like Players at the end of the laſt Act?

Mir. You may remember Gentlemen, I once requeſted your hands as Witneſſes to a certain Parchment.

Wit. Ay I do, my hand I remember——Petulant ſet his Mark.

Mir. You wrong him, his name is fairly written as ſhall appear——you do not remember Gentlemen, any thing of what that Parchment contain'd———[undoing the Box.]

Wit. No.

Pet. Not I. I writ. I read nothing.

Mir. Very well, now you ſhall know——Madam, your promiſe.

Lady. Ay, ay, Sir, upon my honour.

Mir. Mr. Fainall, it is now time that you ſhou'd know, that your Lady while ſhe was at her own diſpoſal, and before you had by your Inſinuations wheadl'd her out of a pretended Settlement of the greateſt part of her fortune———

Fain, Sir! pretended!

Mir. Yes Sir. I ſay that this Lady while a Widdow, having it ſeems receiv'd ſome Cautions reſpecting your Inconſtancy and Tyranny of temper, which from her own partial Opinion and fondneſs of you, ſhe cou'd never have ſuſpected——ſhe did I ſay by the wholeſome advice of Friends and of Sages learned in the Laws of this Land, deliver this ſame as her Act and Deed to me in truſt, and to the uſes within mention'd. You may read if you pleaſe———[holding out out the Parchment.]tho perhaps what is inſcrib'd on the back may ſerve your occaſions.

Fain. Very likely Sir, What's here? Damnation!

[Reads] A deed of Conveyance of the whole Eſtate real of Arabella Languiſh Widdow in truſt to Edward Mirabell.

Confuſion!

Mir. Even ſo Sir, 'tis the way of the World, Sir: of the Widdows of the World. I ſuppoſe this Deed may bear an Elder Date than what you have obtain'd from your Lady.

Fain. Perfidious Fiend! then thus I'll be reveng'd.--[offers to run at Mrs Fain.]

Sir. Wil: Hold Sir, now you may make your Bear-Garden flouriſh ſomewhere elſe Sir.

Fain. Mirabell, You ſhall hear of this Sir, be ſure you ſhall, let me paſs Oafe.

[Exit.

Mrs. Fain. Madam, you ſeem to ſtifle your Reſentment: You had better give it Vent.

Mrs. Mar. Yes it ſhall have Vent——and to your Confuſion, or I'll periſh in the attempt.

[Exit.

Lady. O Daughter, Daughter, 'tis plain thou haſt inherited thy Mother's prudence.

Mrs. Fain. Thank Mr. Mirabell, a Cautious Friend, to whoſe advice all is owing.

Lady. Well Mr. Mirabell, you have kept your promiſe, ——and I muſt perform mine.——Firſt I pardon for your ſake, Sir Rowland there and Foible,—— The next thing is to break the Matter to my Nephew——and how to do that——

Mir. For that Madam, give your ſelf no trouble——let me have your Conſent——Sir Wilfull is my Friend; he has had compaſſion upon Lovers and generouſly engag'd a Volunteer in this Action, for our Service, and now deſigns to proſecute his Travells.

Sir. Wil.

Sir Wil. S'heart Aunt, I have no mind to marry. My Coſen's a Fine Lady, and the Gentleman loves her and ſhe loves him, and they deſerve one another; my reſolution is to ſee Foreign Parts——I have ſet on't ——And when I'm ſet on't, I muſt do't. And if theſe two Gentlemen wou'd Travel too, I think they may be ſpar'd.

Pet. For my part, I ſay little——I think things are beſt off or on.

Wit. I Gad I underſtand nothing of the matter,——I'm in a maze yet, like a Dog in a Dancing School.

Lady. Well Sir, take her, and with her all the Joy I can give you.

Mill. Why do's not the man take me? wou'd you have me give my ſelf to you over again.

Mir. Ay, and over and over again; for I wou'd have you as often as poſſibly I can. Well, heav'n grant I love you not too well, that's all my fear. {Kiſſes her hand.}

Sir Will. S'heart you'll have him time enough to toy after you're married; or if you will toy now; Let us have a Dance in the mean time, that we who are not Lovers, may have ſome other employment, beſides looking on.

Mir. With all my heart dear Sir Willfull, what ſhall we do for Muſick?

Foib. O Sir, Some that were provided for Sir Rowland's Entertaiment are yet within Call.

A Dance.

Lady: As I am a perſon I can hold out no longer; -- I have waſted my ſpirits ſo to day already; that I am ready to ſink under the fatigue; and I cannot but have ſome fears upon me yet, that my Son Fainall will purſue ſome deſperate Courſe.

Mir.

Mir. Madam, disquiet not your self on that account, to my knowledge his Circumstances are such, he must of force comply. For my part I will Contribute all that in me lies to a Reunion, in the mean time, Madam, let me To Mrs. before these Witnesses, restore to you this deed Fain. of trust. It may be a means well manag'd to make you live Easily together.

From hence let those be warn'd, who mean to wed;
Lest mutual falshood stain the Bridal-Bed:
For each deceiver to his cost may find,
That marriage frauds, too oft are paid in kind.

EPILOGUE.

Spoken by Mrs. Bracegirdle.

After our Epilogue this Crowd dismisses,
In thinking how this Play'll be pull'd to Pieces.
But pray consider, ere you doom its fall,
How hard a thing 'twould be, to please you all.
There are some Criticks so with Spleen diseas'd,
They scarcely come inclining to be Pleas'd:
And sure he must have more than mortal Skill,
Who pleases any one against his Will.
Then, all bad Poets we are sure are Foes,
And how their Number's swell'd the Town well knows:
In shoals, I've mark'd 'em judging in the Pit;
Tho' they're on no pretence for Judgment fit
But that they have been Damn'd for want of wit.
Since when, they by their own offences taught,
Set up for Spys on Plays, and finding Fault.
Others there are whose Malice we'd prevent;
Such, who watch Plays, with scurrilous intent
To mark out who by Characters are meant.
And tho' no perfect likeness they can Trace;
Yet each pretends to know the Copy'd Face.
These with false Glosses, feed their own Ill-nature,
And turn to Libel, what was meant a Satire.
May such malicious Fops this Fortune find,
To think themselves alone the Fools design'd:

If

EPILOGUE.

If any are so arrogantly Vain,
To think they singly can support a Scene,
And furnish Fool enough to entertain.
For well the Learn'd and the Judicious know,
That Satire scorns to stoop so meanly low,
As any one abstracted Fop to shew.
For, as when Painters form a matchless Face,
They from each Fair One catch some different Grace;
And shining Features in one Portrait blend,
To which no single Beauty must pretend:
So Poets oft, do in one Piece expose
Whole Belles Assembles of Cocquetts and Beaux.
